Lawyer complaint entered

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Frustrated by what he considers lack of response to Romulus City Council requests in the continuing and costly legal battle involving the planned environmental well, veteran City Councilman Jimmie Raspberry has filed grievances against City Attorney Barry Seifman.

Grievances also have been filed against the two environmental lawyers the city has hired to spearhead their case, Marc Jacobs and Stephen Winter.

Other city council members have filed a resolution that Raspberry's grievance does "not represent the views of the city council nor the views of the city of Romulus."

Raspberry obviously voted against the resolution.

Raspberry said privately that his grievances were tied in "with the excessive amount of money being paid the three lawyers handling the city's case (currently about $340,000), the number of lawyers itself and the fact that they are not adequately representing our views on the matter."

At the council meeting Monday night Raspberry added, "I feel we are being short-changed and we are going to lose the case. I filed the grievance for the people and simply to motivate him (Seifman)."

Councilman Noah "Pete" Bergeron and William Wadsworth, while not joining in the grievance filing, said they felt Raspberry had "every right" to file such a complaint.

Bergeron said Raspberry "was not speaking for the council, but was speaking as a councilman!"

Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks countered by calling Seifman "a man of great integrity, who has been our lawyer for years."

Seifman stated, "I have acted as your city attorney for 10 years. I will respond to the grievance via the hearing process."

Obviously stung by both the grievance filing and strong statements about his legal efforts on behalf of the city in the injection well issue, Seifman said he has served on such lawyer grievance panels in the past.

"I hope Raspberry knows he opens himself up for cross examination during this procedure," he said.

Commissioner bids farewell

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

As 11th District Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann bids farewell to the many communities he served since May 1991, he will take with him many happy memories.

But, perhaps most importantly, he'll remember that not unlike Frank Sinatra's famous song, I did it my way, Amann managed to do everything his way while in office.

A track record of accomplishments, Amann passes on the torch to newly-elected 11th District Commissioner Bruce Patterson.

Having been an active member of the political regime for more than 15 years, however, most of Amann's supporters believe that this go-getter hasn't had his lion's share yet of politics.

Despite what other think, the Wayne resident said he is taking a break from the hustle and bustle of the political world to spend more time with his family and law practice.

"I've been involved with politics since 1978 when I started working with Congressman (William D.) Ford as an intern," Amann said. "So it's been 16 years in one way or another, and I think the main reason I got into politics is similar to a lot of people that I wanted to try and make a difference in people's lives, and the thought that you could do better than the other people already there."

While with Ford, Amann coordinated efforts to obtain federal funds for communities and businesses, and he participated in various legislative activities.

From 1984 to 1986 he practiced law with Miller, Cohen, Martens and Ice, P.C., in Detroit. In 1986 he became the chief deputy Wayne County clerk, a position he held until 1988.

Amann continued his climb up the ladder of success when in 1988 he became the assistant county executive/criminal justice. His primary responsibilities included managing spending on criminal justice programs with oversight of Circuit, Probate, Records and Juvenile courts.

He maintained this position until 1991 when he was elected the 11th District Wayne County commissioner which includes: Canton, Wayne, Belleville, Romulus, Sumpter, Huron and Van Buren.

Amann also continued his law practice and in 1992 joined Brashear, Tangora and Spence P.C. in Livonia.

As he reflects on his years as county commissioner, Amann is pleased with the many projects he was able to successfully work on.

"I guess on different levels in terms of constituent service that's the most rewarding," Amann said. "Where you can drive by someone's house and see where you have fixed their drain problem or being able to help a family that had a problem with the Friend of the Court just getting money to live on. Those kinds of things are really the memories that go

Mayor, Raspbe clash over letter

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Verbal political bombs exploded all over the newly remodeled Romulus City Council Chambers Monday night as Mayor Beverly McAnally openly challenged veteran Councilman Jimmie Raspberry's authorship of a five page environmental well settlement letter.

McAnally called the letter urging that she "apologize to the taxpayers of Romulus for the disgrace she has brought upon the city," another case of "vintage Wicklund" alluding to Douglas Wicklund, owner and president of Environmental Disposal Systems.

Contacted Tuesday morning, Wicklund stated "I didn't write that letter. At this stage in his career, Jimmie doesn't need someone to write for him."

Wicklund continued, "The Mayor seems to be more interested in pursuing her vendetta against me and my company than in looking after her responsibilities to the taxpayers of Romulus."

"The Mayor has lied to the people and we are going to prove it. She will be held accountable for her actions," Wicklund concluded.

Encouraged on by members of Romulus Environmentalists Care About People (RECAP) seated in the audience, McAnally asked, "We have seen these letters and statements before—haven't we?"

The mayor said she was referring to past letters and EDS advertisements written in the form of letters signed by other Romulus persons.

Other skirmishes involved Raspberry and City Attorney Barry Seifman, Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks and Wicklund, and Raspberry and various RECAP members.

The confrontation dated back to New Year's Day, when Raspberry reportedly penned a letter quoting extensively from council meeting minutes, depositions and his personal complaints against city-hired lawyers handling the environmental case.

The letter is particularly hard on McAnally and Seifman.

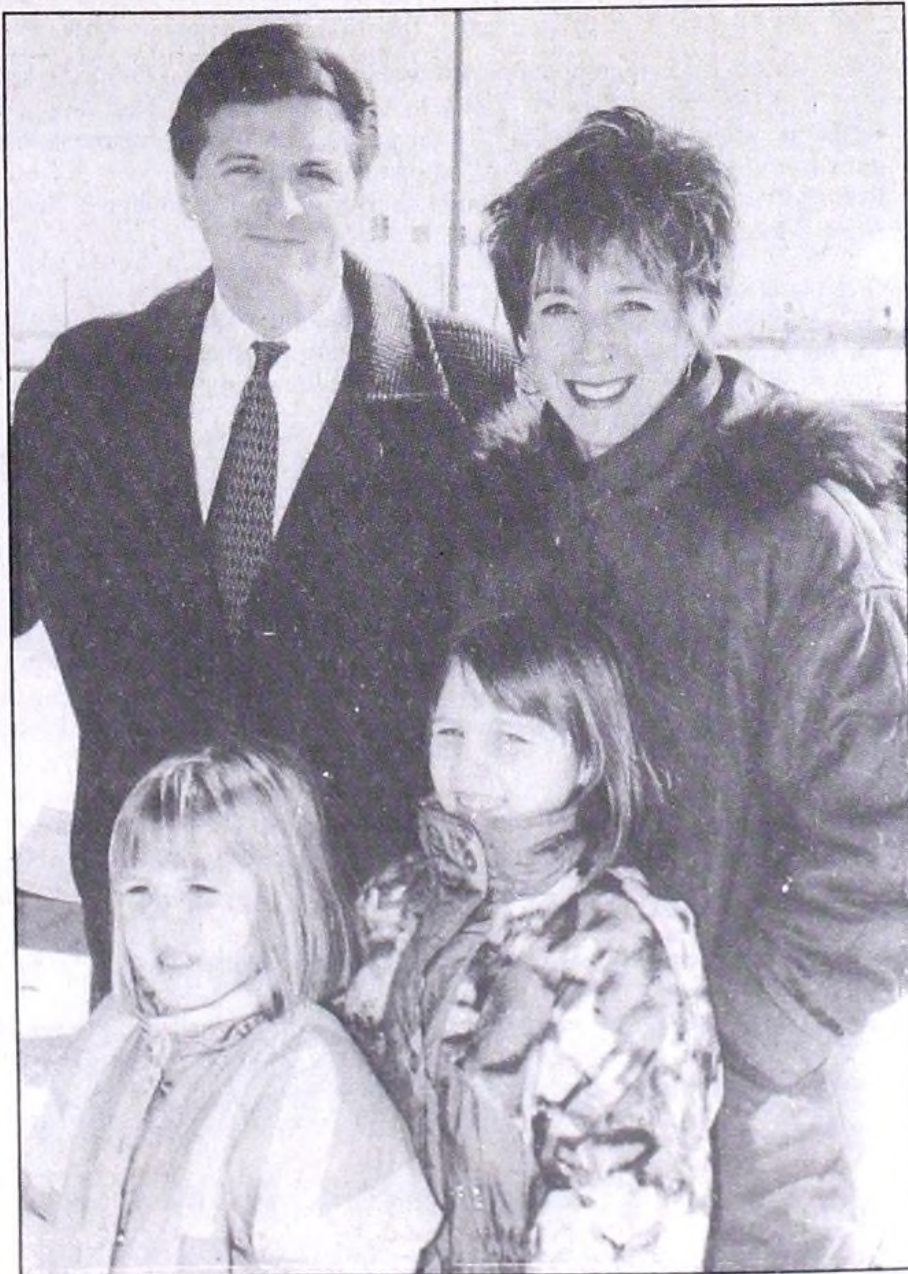

It states McAnally in 1990 "welcomed EDS with open arms" and that Seifman on several occasions stated Michigan "law appears to have preempted any local regulation of deep well hazardous waste."

The letter continued, "On July 13, 1993, EDS invited McAnally and all the other city officials along with candidates for Romulus City Council (including Mary Hattan Collins) to a dinner meeting and informed them that the drilling of the well was about to begin. No one, including Mrs. Collins, expressed opposition to the well."

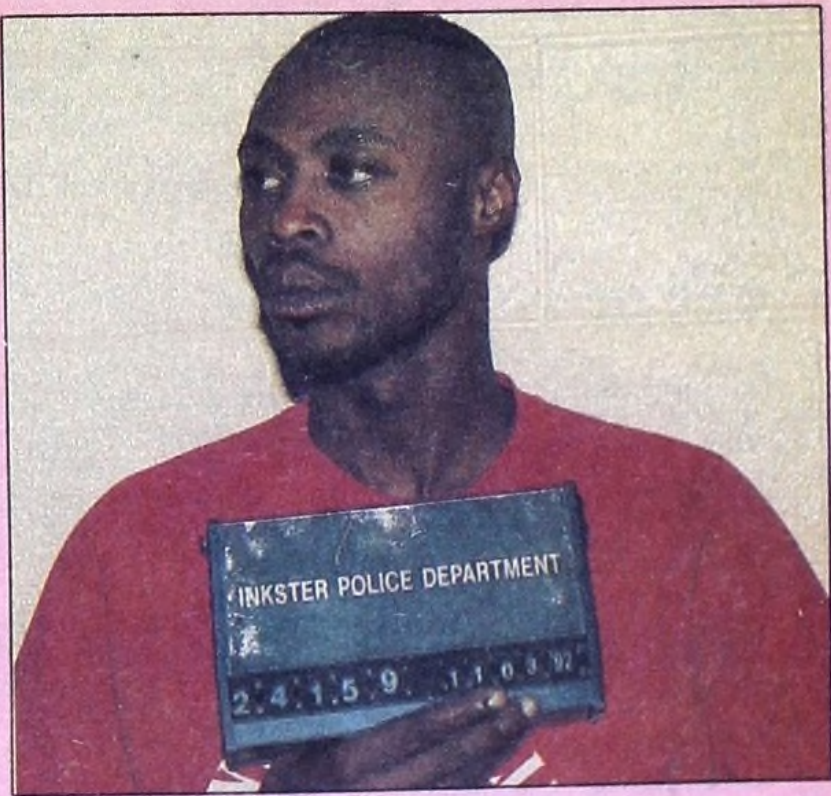

This one statement in the letter drew the most fire from the audience and council members Banks and William Wadsworth.

The two council members said they were informed at the

Ervin D. Mitchell

Suspect arrested in Ann Arbor rapes

Ervin D. Mitchell Jr., 33, a native of Inkster, is charged in a series of sexual assault cases and murder in the city of Ann Arbor.

He was arrested and jailed Christmas Day in Ann Arbor on an assault case.

Inkster Detective James Vergona, who arrested Mitchell in an unrelated rape case, said the suspect was picked up for questioning last fall about the rape of an Inkster girl, 16.

Vergona said that Mitchell gave a false name when he was arrested, however, Dearborn Heights and Inkster police were able to track him down. Although arrested, Mitchell was never charged in either the Dearborn Heights or the Inkster cases.

The suspect broke his silence on Monday and said that he is a scapegoat and is innocent of all the charges.

DIGEST

ZBA hearing resumes Jan. 25

The city Zoning Board of Appeals hearing schedule for the injection well issue will resume Jan. 25 and 26 at the remodeled City Council Chambers, it was announced Monday night.

ZBA Chairman Norm McLenon said the same time schedule is currently planned for the two sessions: 7:30 to 10 p.m. each night.

It is expected that officials from Environmental Disposal Systems will speak at the Wednesday meeting and the city will offer its views on Thursday.

McLenon said earlier that the ZBA hoped to have its written opinion finished within five days after the last board meeting.

Church dinner planned Saturday

The regular community roast beef dinner at the Community United Methodist Church will be conducted from 5 to 7 p.m. Saturday.

The church is located at Bibbins and Olive Streets (across from police headquarters).

The cost of the dinner is $6 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under. Youngsters 5 and younger will be served free.

Tax abatement fee approved

Rising labor costs have encouraged the Romulus City Council to approve a flat $1,000 fee for filing a tax abatement request, along with .0015 times the total cost of the project for the first year on the total amount of the tax abatement.

The cost is similar to those imposed by surrounding communities, city officials said.

American Legion extends thanks

City Treasurer James Napiorkowski, a member of the newly created American Legion Post in Romulus, presented Mayor Beverly McAnally and Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks with official Legion resolutions Monday night.

The resolutions contained words of appreciation for the city's permission for the Legion to use city hall facilities for its meetings, until the Legion actually constructs its own facility in the future.

New digging alert ordered

The purchase of a new computer has been approved for the city to improve the speed of transmission of staking requests within Romulus.

The system known as "MISS DIG" has been arranged because of the significant increase in staking requests in Michigan. In the past quarter of a century, digging requests have been transmitted over private line data circuits.

The new equipment will help ensure speedy and cost effective requests to be handled, Kathleen A. Fournier, executive director of MISS DIG, revealed.

The cost of the new equipment is $1,054, including the first year's maintenance agreement, Department of Public Works Director James Panos revealed.

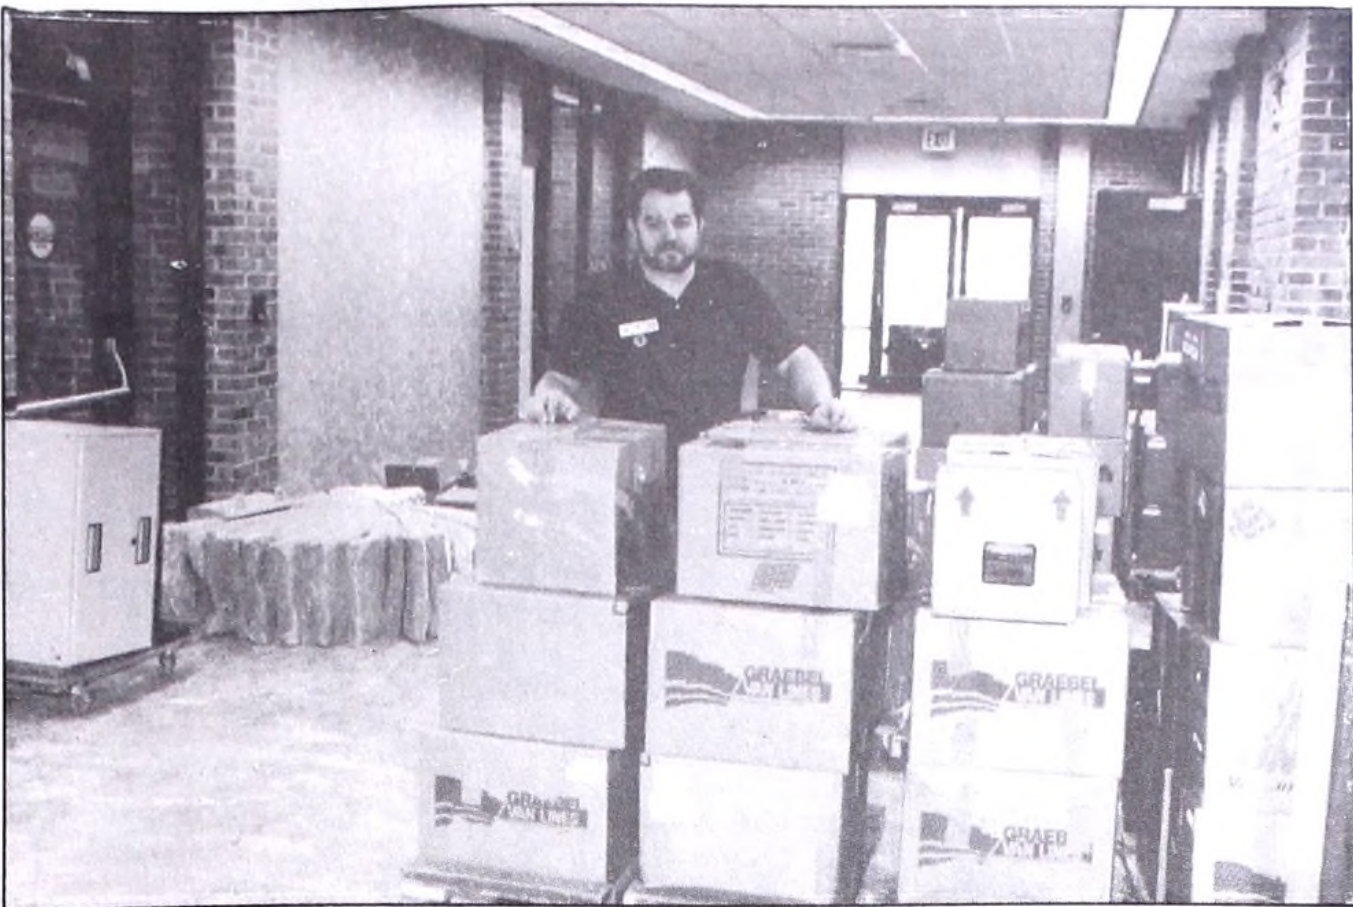

Groundbreaking due in February '95.

Groundbreaking for the new $7.6 million Romulus area Salvation Army Adult Rehabilitation Center, thrift store and sorting factory is expected in February 1995.

Commander Capt. Roger Senn said completion of the project at Middlebelt and Van Born Roads is slated for the summer of 1996.

The Salvation Army is being forced to move from its current Goddard Road site because of expansion of the Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The current facility on Goddard Road is slightly more than a quarter century old.

Completion of the Romulus City Hall remodeling project and moving back into departmental offices are nearly complete. In top photo, City Treasurer James Napiorkowski is shown with an early pile of packing boxes during the midst of the move and in the bottom photo, Betsey Krampitz, administrative assistant to Mayor Beverly McAnally, places some gift plants on the mayor's desk on opening day. Meetings still not on cable TV

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Microphones have enriched communication at the Romulus City Council meetings this month, but live cable television coverage of the meetings has been delayed at least until February, City Cable Television coordinator Oliver Warren revealed Monday night.

Citizens attending the Monday night meeting, the second of the year, expressed pleasure over the loud and clear sounding voices at the emotional meeting.

Delayed telecasts of the city meetings while they were being conducted at the 34th District Court enticed the cable commission into discontinuing the television coverage until after the sessions returned to the city hall.

But Oliver said that he has not received his repaired camera equipment back yet and the revamped and enlarged cable offices in the basement of city hall are not completed yet.

The council chambers are almost complete with minor updates due and photos of former mayors and other elected city officials still to be placed back on the hall walls.

Department heads said many office records boxes still need to be unpacked and placed in the proper files, but by an large most of city hall physical equipment is up and running and becoming more operational each day.

City Hall officially reopened on Jan. 3, but phone service for most departments were delayed until the following day.

In fact, veteran City Councilman Jimmie Raspberry said he tired all day Jan. 3 to reach either Mayor Beverly McAnally or City Clerk Linda Choate's offices to report he would miss that night's meeting.

But he said he was unable to reach either and thus was marked absent from the first meeting of the year. Monday night that absence was switched to excused by Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks, who admitted that phone lines were down that first day.

McAnally and her staff are presently discussing an official open house for the remodeled facility, so that the public can see the remodeled city hall offices. That open house probably will not occur until at least March or April, city officials said.

City Treasurer James Napiorkowski said that exterior landscaping still needed to be done, but would be delayed until spring.

Brownie helpers

Members of Romulus Brownie Troop 291 recently assisted the local Goodfellows holiday drive by turning in scores of cans of food as part of its annual winter project. The Goodfellows in turn gave the Brownies a tour of the Romulus Fire Department headquarters, provided them tips on fire safety and even let the youth try on their official fire boots. Shown in the photo above are troop co-leader Anna Krimm, Stanley Lipkowski and Kevin Wojtylo (standing in rear) and Brownies Shannon Holmes, Samantha Lipkowski, Sara Krimm, Amanda O'Connor, Carol Deaton, Sarah Gentry, JoAnn Tieppo and Leah Moore. meeting that the drilling was going to be a "test well" and Collins said she had asked very pointed questions at the dinner, including one for Wicklund demanding to know, "Is there such an environmental well a quarter of a mile from your house?"

The letter also states "during the drilling (of the well off Wahrman Road) McAnally, David Paul (Building Department chief), Banks and other city officials visited the rig and toured the site on several occasions. Never did anyone from the city express opposition to the project."

Banks said she only visited the site once.

McAnally said, "I never even got out of the car at the site."

Banks then criticized Wicklund for smiling at her (during one of his rare appearances at a city council meeting Monday), while she was explaining her limited visit to the well site.

The letter also claimed that "McAnally was so afraid that Mrs. Collins might be elected to the City Council, she filed a lawsuit against EDS."

It continues, "The Mayor's lawsuit against EDS has never had any basis in fact. This lawsuit is a sham, a fraud and a vindictive attempt by McAnally to save her political career at the expense of the citizens and taxpayers of Romulus."

The letter then switched its attention to Seifman claiming, "had Seifman properly counseled the City Council and warned us of the overwhelming costs and risks associated with filing the lawsuit, we would have acted differently."

"Instead, he did not and we blindly followed McAnally and agreed to sue EDS. All of this could have been avoided had Seifman had the nerve to stand up for his original opinions and to counsel us properly," the letter continued.

Seifman revealed Monday it is hard for him to spotlight what he told council members in private and public sessions, but he knows he counseled them "openly and honestly" on the cost factors and risks involved in a potential lawsuit.

Raspberry's letter continues, "I have tried to stop this madness. I believe the lawyers are bleeding us dry. They, including Seifman, are making too much money to stop now."

The letter then states, "I have read the depositions of McAnally, Paul, Dennis Oakes (former city community development director) and Wicklund and I believe it's not EDS that has lied—it's McAnally."

McAnally openly refutes the lying charge and said she feels sorry that Raspberry has "become a tool of EDS."

Raspberry concludes the letter by saying, "Enough is enough. The well is in and EDS is not going to go away. We should negotiate a settlement with EDS."

Raspberry said copies of his five-page letter are being mailed to city voters this week.

Twice at Monday night's meeting he listed his home address and phone number, urging people to call him and then stop by and see the official papers he quoted from so heavily in his letter.

with you.

"I've kind of matured over the process that it use to be 'Boy I want to get this headline or that headline' and try to make news and have a lot of fun playing politics. But, I think people in public office can make a choice. It's hard to play politics effectively and be a public servant at the same time."

Amann said he went into office mainly on a political agenda based on public service.

"When I first went in, one of my goals was pretty much to burn down the commission and try to dismantle it," Amann said. "But, there came occasions when the county executive and I would disagree on a given issue of my district, and then I needed to put together eight votes out of the 15 on the commission."

"If you don't work with other commissioners on occasion and build some coalitions, then you can forget about protecting your district when an issue comes up. It's easy to get out and make nice fiery political accusations, but the hard work comes when you actually have to put together a coalition."

Amann said when he threw his hat into the ring last February for the 13th District U.S. Congressional seat, he took a look at the size of the congressional body that he would have to work with.

"I thought to myself that Congress is 29 times the size of the Wayne County Commission," Amann said. "As difficult it is to hold eight votes out of the 15, I couldn't imagine what it would be like to hold some 200 votes."

"My parting comments recently at the commission were pretty emotional. I've come to respect the body. Certainly it has its problems like any private entity, but as a body it's very functional. And, I think I left the place a little better than I found it."

Amann said one of the most difficult times was when he had to sue the chairman of the commission just to get documents on how the commission was spending money.

"He then responded by calling me David Duke of Wayne County, and I started getting bomb threats and death threats," Amann said. "I ended up having to go to court to get what any taxpayer should be able to get."

As commissioner, Amann served as chairman of the Special Subcommittee on Legal Affairs. His responsibilities included oversight of all litigation involving Wayne County government and the contracting of outside legal services.

Other committees he took part in included the following:

- Vice chairman-Public Safety and Judiciary Committee-Oversight of offices of Wayne County prosecutor, Wayne County sheriff and county programs and appropriations for Wayne County Probate Court and the Third Judicial Circuit Court.
- Member-Committee on Roads, Airports and Public Services and Committee on Drains and Solid Waste.
- Chairman-Wayne County Siting Committee-Responsible for the siting of solid waste landfills and transfer stations.
- Member-Board of directors, Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART)-March 1992-present.

"Legislatively, one of the bigger achievements I had was making the airport non-smoking," Amann said. "Also, the commission is now on a downward trend in its spending. I feel good that I have caused the paradigm to shift a bit. Certainly there is a ton more to do. You can never fix anything as fast as you like to, but you learn patience."

Will Amann throw his hat again into the political arena?

"I don't know. I still, to this day, am turning down a job offer to be the chairman of the Democratic party," Amann said. "For me it's never been about politics so much as it has been about public service. I couldn't be less without a plan in my life than I am right now."

Amann is going to open a law office in Canton Township with the grand opening expected to be Jan. 15.

Opinion

A belated happy new year to all. Hopefully, we all will share in the peace and prosperity that 1995 is supposed to bring.

Big Beef 1 - Outgoing Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann, who represented much of Michigan Community Newspapers' circulation area pulled a fast one on citizens when he demanded and received health insurance for life from Wayne County.

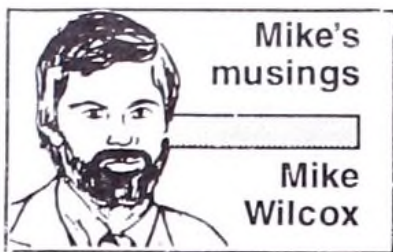

Amann, considered to be a rising political star by many political pundits, threatened to sue the county for age discrimination if he didn't get health insurance immediately. It was just last year that the county commission voted to have Wayne pay their health insurance for life after 45 years of age and eight years of service.

Amann, who is 37, wasn't willing to wait until 45. He threatened a law suit and the Board of Commissioners, with the exception of Dearborn's Susan Hubbard, agreed to give the insurance to their former colleague.

As a disgruntled citizen in our Sound Off column complained, "all Wayne County employees from the county executive to truck driving employees ought to be treated the same: at least 25 years of service with the county before lifetime health insurance policies are given to them."

I agree. Health insurance for life after eight years of elected service is ridiculous. Citizens of Wayne County would never agree to this if put to a vote. Then, to have an outgoing commissioner who does not meet the age requirement get life time insurance from age 37 on - what a farce!

Big Beef 2 - Tom Mooradian reported in this newspaper Sunday, that the Inkster versus Robichaud boys basketball clash was disrupted by a brawl between roving gangs of non-students. The Dearborn Heights gymnasium had to be emptied of all spectators before the game was allowed to proceed. I find this activity to be absolutely despicable. A high school basketball game is sports in the purest sense - student athletes performing as a team to bring honor to their schoolmates and family. It is no place for hooligans. It is no place for fighting.

Mike's musings

The Detroit Public Schools long ago instituted a policy that prohibited night games largely due to the same problem - fights breaking out amongst the spectators. It would be a travesty to moms, dads and students that work during the day if the same policy were invoked locally.

Let's demand better security. Let's keep the troublemakers away from our schools.

Info Item 1 - Look for your new VIP card in this week's newspaper. That's right, 50,000 cards will appear in Michigan Community Newspapers this week along with nearly $100 in manufacturers' coupons savings and samples of General Mills' new Sun Crunchers cereal. That's a heckuva lot of value for the price of the newspaper (50 cents).

The VIP card can be used to receive a variety of discounts throughout the year from participating businesses. The VIP businesses advertise their specials in each issue of Michigan Community Newspapers. Often times the specials change so you need to check out each issue to remain up-to-date on what your VIP card can buy.

Info Item 2 - Some lucky reader is going to win a new car! In our continuing effort to attract more subscribers, we've kicked off our first $10,000 Auto Giveaway. Details of the contest are in the "A" section of this week's newspaper. Make sure you check us out!

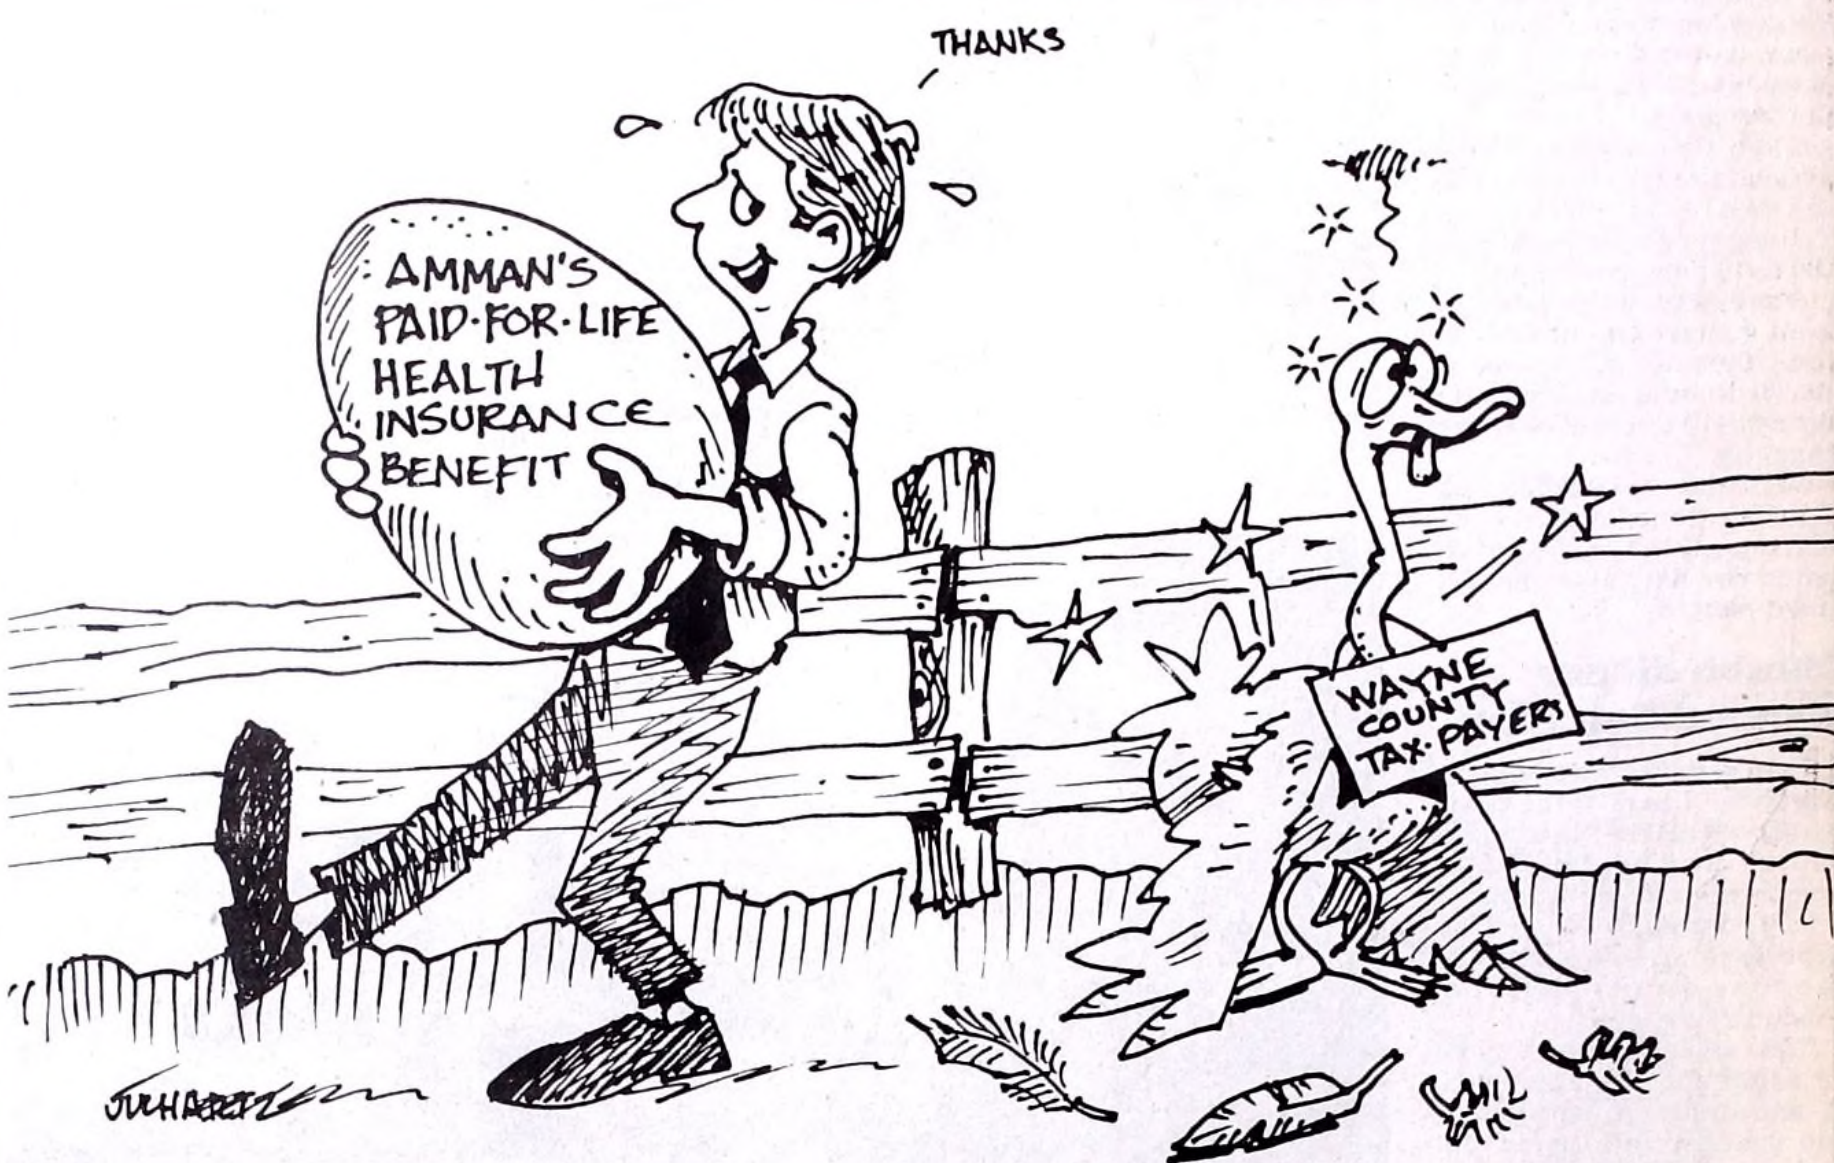

School board members saluted

In an official proclamation, Gov. John Engler has declared January as School Board Member Recognition Month.

The month has been set aside for the public to express its appreciation to the locally elected leaders who are responsible for shaping education.

As we express our appreciation to school board members, we also feel obligated to remind them of their obligation to strive to provide the best education for the children in their district - disregarding personal animosities, political influences and a desire for personal gain or glory.

It is a weighty task, and one that needs to be performed selflessly to be effective.

Recipient says 'thanks'

To the editor:
Please relay this letter to the wonderful people who have made our Christmas a joyest one.

Thank you everyone who gave my children gifts. Because of your kindness my children will have toys to play with, new clothes to wear and bicycles to ride.

Words are not enough to express how I feel for what you have done for us.

I'm so grateful there are people like you, to help people in need like us. Thank you.

Writer opposes incinerator

To the editor:
On Jan. 3 at the Westland City Council meeting, I witnessed a very courageous act when four council members voted down the waste-to-energy plan due to the need for further review.

These civic leaders, Mr. Anderson, Mr. Pickering, Ms. Scott and Ms. Cicirelli, felt quite strong that a proposal some four years in the making was being rushed before them with no independent review. Only two options from organizations most likely to profit from this vote was presented.

While I agree wholeheartedly with these members, I feel the matter of most concern is the location of the Dearborn Heights school (Federal Elementary) directly next door to this incinerator and it's steady stream of toxic contamination raining down over it's playground.

After everything our community has been through, with the exposure risks to our own children by the prevalence of contaminated landfill sites in our city, it is no longer acceptable to be a partner in so risky a venture. Surely the time has come to end the silent threat this incinerator has posed to these innocent children. I, for one, am proud to be a citizen of the only city to call for an end to this obscene silence.

No longer will it be acceptable to place the health and safety of young children second to any elected official's desire to go along just to get along.

Super service

To the editor:
I recently stopped at Hill-yard's Mobil Station on Michigan Avenue.

I was pleasantly surprised when the attendant told me to stay in the car at the self-service pump - because I have a handicap tag on my car.

They do the service and you receive the discount price.

Post cards requested

To the editor:
Will you help me by printing this in your paper?

I need your help. My fifth grade class is studying the United States and its geography. Will you send me a post card, pictures, posters, agazines or anything that will help me learn about your state, our country, and its people?

You may be interested in knowing that this project has already been successful. So far the class has received a phone call from as far way as Wyoming, mounds of personal photos, and letters, books, personal videos, hundreds of post cards, a bottle of Tabasco sauce from Louisiana, information from the U.S. Senator, a necklace from Mardi Gras parade, minerals and more.

I have learned about our country and its people this way.

Agency criticized

To the editor:
We wish to bring to your readers' attention a scandal of tragic proportions, namely, the continued existence of the School of Americas.

SOA was established in 1946 in Panama avowedly to stabilize Latin America, strengthen fledgling democracies and secure American interests in the region. Existing in secrecy, it has readied 56,000 troops in its 47 years. In 1984, SOA was removed from Panama to Ft. Benning. Then, Panamanian President Jorge Illueca called it "the biggest base for the destabilization in Latin America."

Today, 2,000 soldiers from Latin America and the Caribbean are trained yearly in counterinsurgency operations, military intelligence, commando tactics, sniper fire and psychological operations. SOA is funded through the Department of Defense budget, approximately $6 million annually. A recent renovation of school headquarters and officers quarters was completed at a cost of $30 million. SOA trainees enjoy several perks such as weekend trips to Disney World and Atlanta Braves baseball games.

It has produced such hall of fame graduates as Manuel Noriega, Hugo Banzer Suarez of Bolivia, Roberto D'Aubuisson of El Salvador and Manual Callejas of Guatemala. It has also trained many in the Death Squads responsible for the deaths of thousands in Guatemala and El Salvador including Archbishop Oscar Romero, four U.S. Church women and six Jesuits.

Is this how you wish your tax dollars to be spent? Contact your congressperson. Instruct them to support the amendment to the department of Defense budget sponsored by Rep. Joseph Kennedy to cut financing of the SOA. This is worse than pork, it's murder.

Sound-off line ready to receive comments from area residents

This week, our Sound-off 729-4006 line received many calls from disgruntled citizens who commented on a firing, council members and the bulldozing of two old structures.

Individuals who have comments on any subject of general interest may call the 729-4006 line between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. daily. Callers need not identify themselves, but they are asked to refrain from abusive language and slanderous statements.

It's a shame the September Days senior member and volunteers are not consulted or even considered in deciding the direction that the Van Buren Township officials want the center to go. I have no idea how a probationary employee can fire our senior director, Jennifer Delano, when he has less than 90 days in his current position. I find it hard to believe that no higher ups at township hall are really behind this firing. I hope everybody's voice will come and be heard on Jan. 17 at the Van Buren Township board of trustees meeting at township hall. And I hope we all stay mad enough and remember this in November 1996.

Considering Ed McNamara's mismanagement of Wayne County, the bulldozing of Westland's two depression-era buildings -- both gems -- is premature. The buildings, which gave shelter thousands of paupers in the 1930s, will probably be needed again in the 1990s to shelter the survivors of Big Ed's high tax warfare against local citizens and businesses.

The city of Romulus has two veteran councilmen who care how the taxpayers money is spent. $500,000 has already been spent on a deep well that we already have there and always will be there. They already have permits from the federal government and the state government. We need to come to some kind of settlement or agreement with EDS (Environmental Disposal Systems) so we don't bankrupt the citizens and the city. Thank God we have the two veterans on the council as watchdogs for the taxpayers' money.

We need to get more people to attend Wayne council meetings. It's really quite a show. I think it's quite obvious that council members don't take the citizens seriously. When a council member makes a motion to fill a vacancy on council without the council taking the time for discussion, it's pretty obvious to me that they think that the public is not intelligent enough to see the strings moving and the puppet reacting.

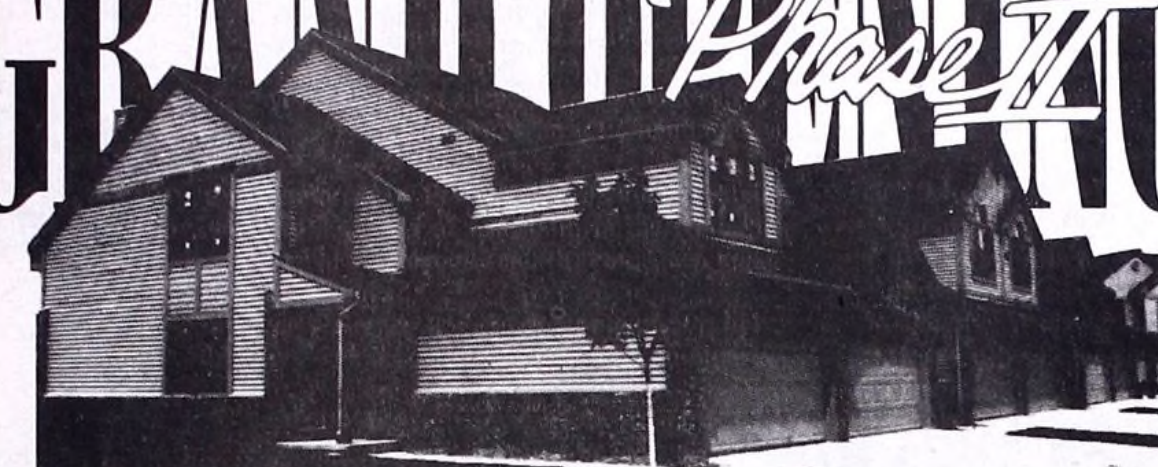

Hooray for Councilmen Pennington and Raspberry. They won't let the city go broke, and they're protecting the taxpayer's money. The other councilmen are incompetent. They're just worrying about their careers. We want to settle.

Shame on your paper for not endorsing the two councilmen in Romulus who care about the citizens. It's a shame, you people endorse candidates who don't even care about the other people. Look what the other people have done. Next time, endorse candidates that will do some good. I'm a disgruntled citizen who is disgruntled with your paper.

1985 PATRIOT,

City investigates DDA option

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
MCN Staff Writer

An $18,000 proposal to study the feasibility of a Downtown Development Authority (DDA) was unanimously approved by Westland City Council members.

The study is being conducted by Premise Associates, Inc. of Detroit and is expected to be completed by late March or early April. It will be used to determine if the business area along Wayne Road between Ford and Glenwood is suffering from deteriorating property values, according to Westland Economic Development Director Scott Veldhuis.

According to a letter from Premise to Veldhuis, "City officials 'intuitively' believe the Wayne Road corridor, because of its deteriorated condition and high levels of vacancy, has suffered from declining values. They seek to determine if this belief is, indeed, substantiated by fact."

The study will not only provide for property assessments in the 2.5-mile area, which consists of mixed commercial and residential uses, a comparison between the property trends in the Wayne Road corridor and other key commercial areas of the city will also be conducted. The study will also determine the number of vacant buildings in the area, according to Veldhuis.

If the development authority is determined to be feasible to establish, the council will vote on whether to approve it. If the authority were approved, a board would be established and funding achieved through the capture of tax revenue in the improvement area. These captured taxes, coupled with a possible tax levy of up to two mills on all non-residential property within the area would provide the city with improvement funding.

The improvement funds would be used for landscaping, new building facades, and other measures which would make vacant buildings more marketable, according to Veldhuis.

"The DDA would be an economic development tool to provide revitalization," Veldhuis said.

City officials have already set aside $100,000 for improvements in the Wayne Road corridor for the 1994-95 fiscal year. According to Veldhuis, various community programs are being considered to determine the best use for these funds. One option, Veldhuis said, is to seek grants which would allow public dollars to be matched by business owners in this area for improvements.

Who's No. 1 Salem or Canton? Friday's tilt to decide

Arch cage rivals clash

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Who is No. 1 in the Plymouth-Canton area? That question will be decided Friday night when Plymouth-Salem Coach Bob Brodie takes the Rocks next door to play arch-rival, Plymouth-Canton.

It will be the first meeting between the veteran Brodie and the new kid on the block, Canton's Danny Young, who was named last year to replace Dave Van Wagoner as head coach.

Young, a former Canton cage star, has managed to string together four victories after the Chiefs dropped two close ones. His latest triumph was an uncharacteristic blow-out of Livonia Stevenson, a team many thought was a serious Western Lakes Conference title contender.

In the meantime, Salem courted the century mark against downriver power, Riverview, and on Friday defeated conference crossover opponent, Walled Lake Western.

Brodie says that the two teams are "pretty evenly matched".

"They (Canton) have a pair of exceptional players in Docks and Hunter," Brodie continued, "and it's obvious we are going to have to stop these two if we are to have any success against them."

"But our kids have showed a lot of team-oriented play and this should be a very interesting game."

Brodie was referring to Canton team captain, Ted Docks, and Ron Hunter, the Chiefs' leaders.

Young said that he did not want to comment on the pending showdown between the two teams. "Right now, my concerns are getting ready for Ann Arbor Huron." (Canton was scheduled to play Huron, a 1-5 team Tuesday night).

Canton held Stevenson to single digits in all four periods en route to an impressive 52-31 victory. The Chiefs, behind Docks' exceptional play, led 28-16 at the intermission and weren't challenged thanks to their stingy defense.

Docks sank 16 points and collected four rebounds while getting credit for five steals and four assists. Hunter chipped in 11 points for the winners who capitalized on 14 of their 19 free throws.

Salem tuned up for their natural rivals with a 54-38 victory over Walled Lake Western. After grabbing a 14-7 advantage in the first period, the Rocks apparently began impatience and hit a mere 27 percent in the second stanza that helped Western come back.

At intermission, Salem had a 20-17 advantage. Dan McKian and Doug Herriman got the Salem transition game going as McKian fired in 10 of his 12 and Herriman scored nine of his 16 in the third period to open the door to a 43-28 Salem led which was never seriously challenged the rest of the way.

McKian had 11 rebounds to go along with his 12 points and Herriman finished with a team high 16 points who had eight players that scored.

Western's two big men, Paul Whitting, who had 18-10 in the first half, and Gerald Oseff, who had 16 (seven in the first half) finished in double figures.

Inkster avoids disaster in OT

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

A gang brawl that led school and law enforcement officials to empty the gym at halftime may have delayed the Robichaud-Inkster basketball game last Tuesday, but it didn't stop Inkster from chalking up a 86-75 crucial overtime victory from their Suburban Athletic Conference rivals.

The victory kept coach Monte Dennard's Vikings on top of the SAC standings and on track in their drive for a second straight title. The defending champs are 2-0 in the conference; 2-3 overall.

Close until the extra period, Inkster had problems putting their opponents away in regulation time. The upset-minded Robichaud club, without the services of their coach, came up with balanced scoring and key baskets to keep the outcome of the game in doubt.

Robichaud coach Ron Tarrant was injured while cutting wood at his home earlier in the day. He severely cut his "ring finger while sawing wood," he said.

Dennard said that his team came back after making some costly mistakes in the initial half.

"Give them credit. They (Robichaud) played an excellent game against us, especially in the first half," said Dennard. "We were inconsistent and our choice of shots, especially in the second period was poor."

Inkster led 18-13 after the first period, but Robichaud rallied thanks to Sandy Davis and David Zirker and closed the gap to 29-24 at halftime. The Vikings got some breathing room as Al White and Haneff Sabree provided the bulk of 22 points that paved the way to a 51-42 lead.

But Robichaud refused to quit and kept it close. When Sabree sank the front end of a one-and-one with six seconds left, the Vikings looked as if they had it sewed up.

But Zirkir grabbed the rebound and got it to Davis who came up with the jumper that knotted the score.

In the overtime, White took command. He scored 11 of his team's 19 points in the overtime that settled the issue.

White turned in with a superlative performance. He collected 28 points, added 20 rebounds and also had 10 assists and eight blocked shots.

Sabree finished with 22 points and Darrick Davidson added 11. Inkster's Mychal Reeves did an excellent job running the offense.

Robichaud countered with Davis' 24 points and had three others scoring in double figures. Zirker accounted for 17 points and Matt Alexander finished with 15. Damian Smith had 12 for the Bulldogs.

Although Inkster was not scheduled to play Friday night - Robichaud did. The Bulldogs lost a 68-63 verdict to Ecorse in the SAC.

Gangs disrupt Robichaud game

By TOM MOORADIAN

Security at future basketball games between Inkster and rival, Robichaud, will be "extremely tight", according to school officials after a couple of members of rival gangs began involved in a brawl last week at Robichaud High School.

"This incident may have happened at Robichaud but we won't allow it to spill over to our school," said George Thompson Jr., Inkster High athletic director. "We know who the trouble-makers are and we won't allow them into our games. We have never had problems in the past, and we are not going to have them in the present."

Thompson stressed that the "people who were involved in the farcas at Robichaud were not students. We don't know who they are."

The brawl between members of two rival gangs Tuesday night disrupted the Robichaud-Inkster high school basketball game, forcing school and law enforcement officials to empty the gym at halftime.

No one was seriously injured, although one person was carried from the scene on a stretcher according to school officials.

Inkster Deputy Police Chief Robert Pendergrass said that five Inkster police officers joined Wayne County Deputies and Dearborn Heights police in restoring the peace.

The game resumed after the gym was cleared of spectators. A handful of school officials and parents were allowed to remain to watch the conclusion of the game, which ended

No heroes 'Team Romulus' continues to win

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

There are no "super stars" in Romulus' basketball lineup.

No Albert Whites.

Or Guy Ruckers.

But coach Guy DelGiudice and his Eagles continue to win thanks, he says, to "overall team performance."

Unheralded and overlooked by the media, Romulus suddenly has made its move for recognition. The Eagles' credentials include a holiday title and an impressive 6-1 record.

Its latest victory "was sweet, indeed," a 60-51 decision over Adrian, the only team that has beaten the Eagles this year.

"We are playing defense, now, and that is making a difference," said DelGiudice, who is in his second year as head coach. "We don't have any super stars or players on this team, so we have to rely on all of the players to contribute if we're going to win."

The closest thing to "super" is Antoine Stoudmire, who broke into the All-Area lineup as a junior a year ago and has picked up where he has left off.

Stoudmire came up with a game high 21 points and grabbed 11 rebounds in the rematch against Adrian which managed to come back from a 15-10 first-period deficit to close within a

Stage set for showdown between Wayne, Glenn

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Although the coaches say that they are not looking ahead and are playing their games "one at a time", the planks are slowly being put in place for the basketball showdown between natural rivals Westland John Glenn and Wayne Memorial.

Both ranked and considered title contenders in their respective conference, the two teams will rekindle their rivalry Tuesday night at Glenn.

Wayne coach Chuck Henry says that he really has not has much time to think about the Rockets, "but I can say this, they have another excellent team this year. It's no secret they have an outstanding player in Guy Rucker, but Mike (Mike Schuette, Glenn coach) also has an excellent supporting staff."

The compliments also came from the other side of the floor. Schuette said that Wayne has traditionally been a tough opponent on the hardwood. And he predicted another hard-fought game.

"They are methodical both on offense and defense and attempt to force you to play their game," Schuette added. "Believe me, when you run up against a Wayne team coached by Chuck Henry, you better come prepared to play."

ington Hills Harrison Friday night, Glenn looked as if they were ready to play in the NBA. They humiliated their Western Lakes Conference opponent, 87-48, the worst beating a Glenn team has ever inflicted on a Harrison cage team.

Keeping their jet fuel in reserve for the future tasks, the Rockets soared from a 44-22 half-time advantage to their third win in four starts.

Rucker and Terrel Tigner were the catalysts for the Rockets' victory as the 6-11 center hit a game-high 25 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and also blocked five shots. Tigner hit on four treys as the senior forward contributed 16 points.

While it was SRO again for Robichaud-Inkster last Tuesday, the condition existed only in the first half before officials vacated the gym because of a brawl between two rival gangs. Dealer's worst nightmare

K-9 Academy trains police dogs for drug tracking, evidence detection, obedience

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

His code name is Bullet. His rank is Wayne police officer. When he goes on a mission to seek out drugs in cars, buildings and schools, Bullet carries only one weapon—his nose.

It takes a special kind of dog to be trained for police work, according to Terry and Diane Shoenbach, who are Van Buren police officers and the owners of K-9 Academy in Wayne County where Bullet is in training.

Bullet made the list to earn his badge with his partner Wayne police officer Brian Wojcik.

K-9 educates the best of the best for local police departments and the Detroit Metropolitan Airport dog. The Shoenbach's dog training facility is so popular that they never have to advertise. They rely mainly on word-of-mouth publicity.

Highland Park police officer Terry Foley is the K-9 Academy head instructor. He said the dogs typically begin their training two days a week for the first three months.

"We then go into a second phase of training called 'On The Road' where they come here for eight hours one day a week, and then the rest of the training is while they are on the road," Foley said.

Dogs are required to be between 10 and 15 months old in order to be considered for the police school.

"That's because usually around 10 months they are considered in their teenage years, and their maturity is up a bit," Foley said. "They start comprehending more at that time."

Foley said Bullet was a special case because usually the Academy receives dogs from a breeder in Canada.

"When Wayne came around and wanted a dog, the breeder didn't have any left," Foley said. "So we had to search around the country looking for a dog that satisfied our requirements. We wanted a dog that wasn't trained, and we wanted a dog that was an import. Bullet comes from Czechoslovakia."

"The only training that Bullet had that we can tell is a little bit of obedience work and a little bit of narcotics detection."

Foley said "friendliness" in a dog is the first key to having a good police dog.

"We don't look for a dog that's mean," Foley said. "We don't look for a dog who wants bite everybody. We can teach a dog everything else. If he's not friendly, we can't deal with him."

Foley said the dogs at K-9 Academy are trained in seven different areas.

"We call that a full-service dog," Foley said. "We believe that dogs doing one task is a waste. These dogs love to learn. For suburban departments or smaller departments it's just not practical to have a dog that does one thing because those kinds of departments can't afford two or three dogs."

Dogs are trained in tracking, narcotics detection, building search, evidence search, area search, handler protection and obediences.

"These dogs must go through basic and advance obedience which means on and off the leash," Foley said. "They are taught verbal and hand signals."

Wojcik was asked by Wayne Police Deputy Police Chief Kerry Webb if he would like to have a police dog as a partner. Wojcik was very much in favor of the idea. Bullet now lives with Wojcik.

"I have a dog of my own so I like dogs in general," Wojcik said. "We get along great."

The dog and his partner work as a team. Sometimes it takes the handler a little more time to learn a process than it does the dog, according to Foley.

"Dogs learn faster than their handlers sometimes," Foley said. "They are certified as a team. If a dog does well and the handler doesn't, then you don't get certified."

"All the officers here not only get certified by our training facility, but we belong to a national organization called the National Police Work Dog Association."

Bullet is the only dog in the history of K-9 Academy who is being trained on the opposite side of his partner. Usually the dog is to the left of a handler, however, with Wojcik being left handed, Bullet is situated to his right.

Dogs that are being trained at the K-9 Academy include Canton Township police officer Todd Cook and his partner Bas who is a Dutch Sheppard imported from Holland.

Baas has been on the road for two years. All of his commands are in Dutch which is the language he first learned.

Van Buren officer Melissa Taylor is in training with her partner Miranda who is in a trial situation to see if she can handle the program.

The K-9 Academy officials train mostly German Shepards, according to Terry Shoenbach because they make the best all-around dogs.

"Since they are trained in all those areas, German Shepards are more efficient," Shoenbach said.

Diane Shoenbach introduced her partner in crime,

Caesar seizes $1.6 million in drugs, cash

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

In his long-time career as a police dog, Caesar is considered the king of drug detection.

He handles between 250 to 280 police cases a year in Highland Park. Within the last five years he has found $1.6 million in cash and 20 to 30 kilos in cocaine, according to K-9 Academy head instructor Terry Foley.

"He's one of the best," Foley said. "He will retire by this time next year."

Caesar, who is seven years old, is retiring not because of old age. While he was on duty chasing a criminal, the officer fell one floor and injured his spine, according to Foley.

"I'm going to have him retired before he is crippled," Foley said. "He will be a house pet relaxing at home."

His departure will be a sad one for the various police departments that have worked with Caesar including Royal Oak Township, Dearborn Heights and Hamtramack. Drug dealers, however, will probably not shed a tear.

"At one time Caesar had contracts out on his life for $2,500 and $1,100," Foley said. "These dogs really intimidate people. They do their job well."

Bullet is Wayne police officer Brian Wojcik's best friend (top left). He is becoming an expert in drug detection. Caesar (bottom right) is the king of finding drugs. Van Buren officer Diane Shoenbach (middle left) proclaims her dog, Felony, is the best police dog on the force. Vikings pin Rouge for 2nd mat win

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

For a team that had a score of defections before the season, Inkster High is doing quite well on the mats these days.

Coach Sam Ellis' Vikings managed to pull out a 36-27 victory over River Rouge last week for their second consecutive Suburban Athletic Conference victory in as many starts. The defending champ had seven winners against the Panthers. Two of wins, however, were on forfeits.

Rouge failed to put up opponents against Steve Poellnitz (100) and Kevin Jackson (275).

The Vikings picked up victories thanks to Mike Franklin (112), who registered a fall at 3:05 over his opponent. Nakimba Mims put the 126-pound class in the Inkster win column also a fall (5:05).

Jay Wiggins won his match in the 134-pound category, 6-0, and teammate Darwin Baker proved to be the best at 160 when he pinned his opponent in 1:02. The Vikings also won the 172-pound bout as Moses Davis surfaced with a 14-10 decision over his foe.

One of the best matches of the evening pitted Inkster junior Jaquim Gould against Mike Chele. The two staged a scoreless duel in regulation, forcing the issue into an overtime where the Rouge grappler was awarded a 4-2 victory in the 142-pound class.

"It was one of the best matches I have seen this year," noted Ellis.

Ellis took six wrestlers to the Lincoln Park Invitational on Saturday and came away with two bronze medals and a sixth place.

Jackson placed third at 275, and Basker also was awarded a bronze in the 151-pound class while Franklin finished sixth at 112.

Inkster piled up 36 points and finished 11th in a field of 14 area teams.

"I felt that Baker and Jackson wrestled very well at this tournament," Ellis offered.

Golf class scheduled

For those who want to learn to golf or for those who want to brush up on their skills, the Romulus and Van Buren Adult and Community Education program offers a four-session class.

The class begins at 7 p.m. Feb. 8 and continues through March 8.

Proper stance, grip and swing for irons and woods will be taught, as well as proper golf etiquette.

Participants should bring a seven iron to the first class, which will be conducted at Belleville High School, 501 W. Columbia.

basket of tying the score at intermission.

Adrian edged to the front after outscoring their hosts 14-11 (43-42) in the third period but Stoudmire, joined by Mike Bell and Skip Luster, turned the tables with an 18-8 finish.

Bell and Luster also scored in double figures. Bell tossed in 14 points and also contributed seven rebounds and four steals. Luster, along with his 13 points, had six rebounds, five steals and three assists.

The victory lifted the Eagles to a 6-1 perch as they begin "their toughest part of the schedule," according to DelGiudice.

"We meet some of the best teams in the area in the next two weeks," the Romulus coach added. "It's going to be a real test for us."

After hitting the road to Temperance Bedford on Tuesday, Romulus will get a look at White, Inkster's superstar who has signed a letter to attend the University of Michigan in the fall.

"We meet some of the best teams in the area in the next two weeks. It's going to be a real test for us. I'm looking forward to the matchup with Inkster because they like to run, and we like to run. It should be an interesting game."

- Guy DelGiudice

Inkster will host the Eagles Friday night. Then, next Tuesday, the Eagles take on Belleville, the defending Mega Conference champs who are ranked in the Class A polls again this year.

DelGiudice is looking forward to the matchup with Inkster "because they like to run, and we like to run. It should be an interesting game."

Romulus spikers finish 2nd-best

The Romulus High School girls volleyball team finished second in the school-sponsored annual Holiday Varsity Volleyball Tournament conducted in the Romulus gymnasium.

Coach Gayle Coleman said her nine-member team lost in the finals to Jackson High School, 5-15, 5-15.

Romulus started out strong in the pool portion of the tournament defeating Mount Carmel, 15-4 and 15-13; downing Notre Dame Prep, 15-11 and 15-2; splitting with Gabriel Richard, 15-9 and 8-15; and splitting with Flint Central, 13-15 and 15-13.

Romulus thus came out of pool play, 6-2, Coleman said, and then defeated Gibraltar Carlson with scores of 15-10, 8-15 and 18-16.

The Belleville High School girls lost all four matches against: Taylor Central, 14-16 and 12-15; Carlson, 3-15 and 8-18; Cabrini, 9-15 and 5-15 and Jackson, 3-15 and 4-15.

Coleman revealed Romulus had a number of standouts

"Casandra Jackson, was very effective at the nets with 10 kills against Jackson and 49 in the total tournament."

- Gayle Coleman

during the tournament including:

- Casandra Jackson, who was very effective at the nets with 10 kills against Jackson and 49 in the total tournament.

- Stephanie Vit with 31 kills in the tournament.

- Jennifer Kusibab, who served tough throughout the tournament scoring 18 aces.

- Roggett Peterson with 38 defense digs.

- Michelle Slawinski, who worked well in the back line and scored 47 defense digs.

Coleman praised her squad for an outstanding performance in the 11th tournament the school has hosted. "It definitely was the best showing we have made in recent years," she said.

James McDonald scored a season high 23 points and Herriman added 16 while Justin Maras scored 11 in Salem's 92-63 victory over Riverview.

Salem jumped on the Pirates 27-14 despite the performance of Brad Foster who had seven (a season's high) treys in this one and finished with individual scoring honors with 29.

Foster's long-range shooting kept it close the first half as the downriver power closed to within 10 (42-32) at the half. A 26-19 advantage in the third quarter capped with a 24-12 edge in the final sealed the victory for the Rocks.

Herriman also carded a personal high of 14 assists for the winners.

Before its encounter with Canton on Friday, Salem also had to travel to Brighton Tuesday night for a non-conference game.

When the fans left the bleachers and began to pour down on to the gym floor, school officials decided to clear the gym and play the game without fans.

"We figured that that was the best thing to do," Yauck said. "We were no going to take any chances. To my knowledge there were no other incidents."

Robichaud coach Ron Tarrant was not with his team Tuesday night. Earlier that day, while sawing some wood at home, he suffered a severe cut to his left hand and was rushed to St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor Township.

"I was cutting some wood and the saw slipped and I cut my ring finger," said Tarrant by telephone on Friday. "I have lost part of my ring finger and may need further surgery, so I also will not be with the team tonight (Friday night)."

Tarrant's assistant, former River Rouge coach, Lofton Greene, took over the team in Tarrant's absence.

In an overtime victory for Inkster.

"Our investigation shows that the fight broke out on the Inkster-side of the stands and did not involve students from either school," Pendergrass said. "The fight broke out at intermission and within minutes we had some 25 officers at the high school."

The high school is located in the city of Dearborn Heights, in the Westwood Community School District. But there is a large number of Inkster residents who attended classes in the school district. The two schools are natural rivals in athletic and scholastic competition.

Robert Yauck, Robichaud High principal, said "those involved in the fight definitely were not from Robichaud High. They also were not former Robichaud students. We really don't know who they were."

Yauck said that the initial brawl started in the lobby during the intermission and that the fight spilled into the gym

Two Westland men, who pleaded to reduced charges for their part in the February 1994 baseball bat beating of a 36-year-old Garden City man, were sentenced to one year reporting probation before Detroit Recorder's Judge George Crockett III.

Brothers Richard Anthony Nastal, 21, and Ryan Allen Nastal, 19, were accused of holding the man down during the beating and also hitting and punching the victim. Richard Nastal pleaded guilty to trespassing and Ryan Nastal pleaded guilty to assault and battery.

Their partner in the incident, John Robert Young, a 20-year-old who wielded the aluminum bat, striking the victim in the back and approximately twice in the head, pleaded to felonious assault.

Young will be sentenced before Judge Crockett March 13, 1995. He faces a maximum sentence of four years in prison.

Officers discovered the victim lying on the garage floor of a Westland home bleeding severely, according to Westland police. The victim, who was transported to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, received 20 stitches to his head and suffered a severe concussion, according to Westland police Lt. Marc Stobbe.

Young's neighbor, Larry Glinski, 50, who lives at the home where the incident occurred on the 6300 block of N. Wayne Road, testified during preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court that a confrontation with Richard Nastal sparked the incident.

Glinski, who lives with his mother and nephew, testified that he was at home when Richard Nastal came to the door demanding $100 allegedly owed to Young by Glinski's nephew.

After Glinski told him to leave, Nastal said, "I'll be back and I'll get you and your nephew," according to testimony.

Nastal returned around 11 p.m. with Ryan Nastal and Young and while Glinski was arguing with them outside, the nephew called police and his 36-year-old cousin, Basil Douglas Buck, to come help, according to testimony.

"One kid said something and rushed at me. He grabbed me and another person (Ryan Nastal) jumped on my back and we went to the ground," Buck testified.

Vice markets targeted Supreme Court upholds car confiscations

Prosecutors were given a big victory in the fight against vice markets by a decision rendered by the state Supreme Court.

Wayne County Prosecutor John D. O'Hair applauded the decision which supported the Circuit Court abatement order to confiscate the car used by a subject in which to have a sex act by a prostitute.

In O'Hair versus Bennis, the Detroit Police Department confiscated an automobile co-owned by a Royal Oak resident who had used it to drive into a north central Detroit neighborhood where he engaged a prostitute. A Circuit Court judge found the use of the vehicle constituted a nuisance and order it sold and the net profits deposited in the state general fund.

The man who used the car and the other owner of the vehicle appealed the abatement order, arguing that owners cannot lose their vehicle if it is used for prostitution just once, especially where one of the owners did not know of, or consent to, the usage.

The owners were temporarily successful in the Court of appeals. Now, however, the Michigan Supreme Court has rejected the owners' arguments, and has reinstated the Circuit Court imposed Abatement Order.

Justice Dorothy Comstock Riley, writing for the majority, held that the intent of the abatement statute is to stop "the inevitable decline of vice-laden neighborhoods."

Here, the proofs showed that the subject neighborhood was well-known as a place of prostitution; that this offender had patronized the illicit activity in the neighborhood on prior occasions; and that on the evening in question, the offender drove to the location.

Rejecting the argument that a vehicle had to be used for prostitution more than once in order to be abatable, Justice Riley wrote that such holding "would allow the criminal actors to circumvent the law" just by using a different vehicle for the commission of each offense.

Accidents more costly than crime in state

It is a fact that may be hard to believe, but the cost of traffic crashes is more than double that of crime in Michigan.

The analysis, recently conducted by the University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute, reveals that traffic crashes cost the state more than $12 billion in 1993, while the total cost of index crimes was approximately $5 billion. This translates to $3,166 for each Michigan taxpayer who filed a tax return in 1992 versus $1,315 per taxpayer for crime costs.

"Traffic crashes are an epidemic that requires the attention of everyone in our state," said Betty Mercer, executive director of the Michigan State Police, Office of Highway Safety Planning.

"Certainly, crime is of major concern and for good reason. But, drunk driving is a violent crime as is every death on Michigan roads. We must continue to focus adequate resources on traffic safety enforcement and education.

More than 40 percent of traffic fatalities in the state involved alcohol in 1993 and approximately three-quarters of traffic crash victims were not wearing safety belts.

His snoring may be keeping you awake ... but it could be killing him.

Loud snoring can be annoying, but it may also signal a serious medical condition called sleep apnea.
With sleep apnea, your husband may stop breathing while he's sleeping, then wake up gasping for air. Because his sleep has been disturbed, he wakes up as tired as when he went to bed.
Sleepiness is just part of the problem -- it's the possible complications that can be a nightmare. Complications such as high blood pressure and an enlarged heart that can endanger health ... even shorten his life.
But sleep apnea can be treated. At Garden City Hospital's Sleep Disorders Center, our team of specialists will determine the cause of the problem and design the best treatment plan for it.
Don't lose sleep worrying about sleep apnea -- call the Sleep Disorders Center at (313) 458-3330, for free information or to schedule a sleep evaluation.

Gingerbread prize winner enters cake contest again

By GRETCHEN MADICK
MCN Special Writer

Fifty hours of hard decorating and an investment of $49 to $60 have gone into a Gingerbread Contest entry that may take top honors during the Plymouth Ice Festival annual competition.

Wayne residents and sister-in-laws, Laurie and Carol Darin, have taken the top honors at the annual gingerbread rivalry for two years running.

Pre-competing with the same entries in Hart, Mich., the duo have won highest honors for three years in a row. The Hart competition is their last, because they don't want to be "greedy." The first prize in the contest was $150 in "Hart Dollars" that can only be spent in the local community stores. Prizes in Hart are awarded down to $25, which is the amount winners receive for first prize in the Plymouth contest.

The 1995 theme is a carousel.

"We had trouble with the roof. It's supported by a pillar in the middle. We had a couple of failures before we came up with the final roof," Carol Darin said.

Fitting into the "large gingerbread" category, they molded black and brown horses out of gingerbread.

"We made a large pop corn ball and covered it with candy for the top of the carousel," Darin said. The carousel is less than four feet high, but it's large.

The 1994 winner was a train station, with a Santa castle and reindeer barn. The first year they wasted a lot of money buying things that they didn't need. Now, they buy small quantities of candy at a time to try out.

Unfortunately, the houses never are eaten. They are displayed on the porch with a spotlight on them and eventually weather conditions take their toll. The same board is recycled each year to display new gingerbread creations.

Wayne residents Laurie and Carol Darin have won many prizes for their gingerbread houses, and hope that this year, they will earn a top prize for their carousel-theme gingerbread house. The cake and candy houses displayed are past prize winners created by the two women. MCN Special Photo

Controversy continues with reappointment

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
MCN Staff Writer

A longtime Westland public servant has been reappointed to another six-year term despite earlier disputes that a non-resident should not serve on the Westland Economic Development Corporation/Tax Increment Finance Authority.

At a Dec. 19, 1994 council meeting, Westland City Council President Thomas Brown objected to the reappointment because Stockmeyer moved out of the city of Westland.

"Norm Stockmeyer was on the first planning commission of this community. He probably served more years than anyone else who lives here," however, Brown added, "The attorney's opinion says you cannot have people serving on the committee when they are no longer residents."

"Either you have a resident or you don't. I have no objection with anyone staying with the city, but ... I don't want to be charged with breaking the charter," Brown said.

Either you have a resident or you don't. I have no objections with anyone staying with the city, but ... I don't want to be charged with breaking the charter.

- Thomas Brown

According to Mayor Robert Thomas, who obtained a legal opinion about the residency issue, the Economic Development Corporation does not require residency to be a member.

Council postponed the measure and agreed unanimously to reappoint Stockmeyer last Tuesday.

"We ruled four years ago that if it was not law, charter prevails," Brown said. "I do not object to Mr. Stockmeyer continuing to serve, but this city should not have rules for some that don't apply to others."

Senator recovers from triple-bypass surgery

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
MCN Staff Writer

Former state Senator William Faust remains in guarded, but progressing condition after a triple-bypass operation Dec. 23, according to Westland City Council liaison Joseph Benyo.

Faust, who spent the last days of his 28 years in office in the hospital recovering from the surgery, is in stable condition on a respirator and under sedation. However, a bout with an infection and water on the lungs is clearing up, Benyo added.

Faust underwent the operation after visiting his physician for a checkup. According to Benyo, Faust had 95-percent blockage in the arteries leading to his heart so surgery was performed immediately.

Although Faust cannot receive visitors or phone calls, anyone wishing to send a card to the senator may do so by addressing them to Michigan Capital Medical Centers, 401 W. Greenlawn, Lansing, Michigan 48910.

Faust announced his retirement from office at the age of 65 earlier last year. His last term expired Jan. 1, 1995, when former Canton Township Clerk Loren Bennett took over the office of 12th District Senate which includes: Westland, Woodhaven, Wayne, Van Buren, Brownstown, Canton, Sumpter and Huron townships, Romulus, Rockwood, Flat Rock and Belleville.

Family fun

Oh to be young at heart. Children of all ages participate weekly at the Wayne Community Center open skating session. Michael Ponsun (top) tried to stay on top of the ice, but it was just a little too slippery for him. Raymond Domzalski (middle right) received a helping hand from Wendy Sentz and George Sheppard. Chelsea Secord (top left) and Stephanie Beam tried pair skating around the rink. Volunteer Yvonne McCullough offers assistance to Brianna Lenski with lacing up her skate. Raymond Domzalski decided to try skating solo by starting at his own runner's block. Wayne has one of the best ice rinks in town. For open skating times call 721-7400.

After-holiday fitness classes slated to begin this month

High on the list of New Year's resolutions are those related to losing weight, trimming down and firming up.

To help western Wayne County residents keep those promises, the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA is offering a number of classes for youths and adults which begin in January.

"During the winter membership drive (through Jan. 21), we are waiving the joining fee on all memberships," said Community Director Kathleen Plond. "Prospective members can obtain a free guest pass and take a tour of the facilities during this time."

Among the classes offered are teen weight training classes, lifeguard training, weights for women and fitness classes. Swimming classes are available for tots, 3 and younger with a parent; 3 to 5 and those 6 and older.

Swim classes are scheduled for "frady" cats, geared to those afraid of water; cool cats, for those who are not afraid to submerge, and top cats, designed for those who can swim but need refinement in their skills.

A master swim team for those 19 and older, a synchronized swim team for men and women 21 and older, and an water exercise workout for those 13 and older are slated to begin in January.

Basketball for boys and girls, grades three to nine, and a youth floor hockey league for those 6 to 12 are also taking registrations.

Nick Noel, 12, Matt Haskell, 6, and Annie Stokes, 10, practice their floor hockey skills. Counselor Marty LaPorte provides instruction. MCN photo by Ken Garner

Public comments sought on Willow Creek clean-up proposal

Tonight at 7:30 p.m., citizens will have an opportunity to comment on the proposed remedial action plan to clean up Willow Run Creek.

The site of the public forum will be the Van Buren Township Hall, 46425 Tyler Road, west of Belleville Road.

After several years of discussions, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) have reached an agreement on how to address the remediation of the Willow Creek contamination site. The comments gathered tonight will be studied by the two agencies before the plans are implemented.

In a recent report to the Huron Valley Conservation Association (HVCA), long-time member Marty Elliott noted that he has attended meetings on the Willow Creek contamination as a representative of the HVCA for more than 20 years.

"There's a lot to be done, but it has come a long way," Elliott told the HVCA members. "When I first began to monitor the situation at Willow Creek it was a sludge pond."

Elliott said he will continue to attend meetings and bring the members up to date on any new developments.

"The situation is not good yet, but it certainly has improved since I first began to attend the meetings about the contamination," Elliott said.

The Willow Run Creek area contamination site is located in Ypsilanti and Van Buren townships, Washtenaw and Wayne counties. It is located southwest of the Willow Run Airport and north of the intersection of Interstate-94 and Rawsonville Road.

The agreement between the DNR and EPA provides that the EPA will defer listing of the Willow Run Creek area site as a National Priorities List Superfund site. In return the state DNR will work with the Potentially Responsible Parties (PRPs) to develop the site remediation plan under the authority of the Michigan Environmental Response Act.

Any proposal to remediate the site will be subject to all local, state and federal environmental requirements, including the federal Toxic Substance Control Act.

Those identified as PRPs are Wayne County, Ypsilanti Township, Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority, General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and the University of Michigan.

The PRPs will fund the site investigation and cleanup, and the MDNR will have review and approval authority for all remediation plans and will provide oversight of the cleanup.

A history of the area notes that during World War II, Ford Motor Company constructed and operated a B-24 manufacturing plant and airport on property owned by the Defense Plant Corporation of America.

A 30-day public comment period will follow the release of the plan.

"She's the old lady of the group," Shoenbach said. "She's an American-bred Sheppard."

The Shoenbach's began their interest in dog training as dog owners. Terry Shoenbach has a background in education which gave his wife the inspiration to teach dog training.

"The education is not only for the dog but also for the owner," Diane Shoenbach said. "It's important that a dog and a handler form a bond. For the dogs, this is really another form of play. They don't really understand the full meaning of this kind of training."

Is there a difference between training a female dog and a male dog?

"Yes," Shoenbach said. "The male dogs when you tell them you're going to do something now, they get all excited and jump up and down and it's like their saying 'Let's go, let's go. I don't care what we're doing. Let's just go.' Whereas the female dogs, you ask them to do something, and they don't move a muscle. They just look at you and say, 'Well, what's in it for me.'"

Quote of the Week

"If you're going to build an 18-hole golf course in the cities of Westland and Inkster, we want the front nine and not the back nine because we have an aversion of being on the backside of anything."

Dr. Terrel M. LeCesne, former mayor of Inkster who serves as assistant superintendent of schools in Romulus, commenting on the new golf development project targeted to be built in Westland and Inkster.

Sentencing set in Wayne assault

A Wayne man charged with three counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct in the alleged assault of a Wayne woman is expected to be sentenced Aug. 14 in Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court.

Ronald James Holt, 19, plead guilty Jan. 11 before Judge Dalton Robertson.

Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews said the victim knew her alleged assailant.

"She was the one who called the police with the complaint," Drews said.

Holt was arraigned Aug. 15 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold. A not-guilt plea was entered at the arraignment for Holt, and a $100,000 cash bond was set.

If the defendant is sentenced on all three counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct, he could receive up to life in prison, according to Drews.

Coach resigns football post

First year Romulus High School varsity football coach James Zoltowski has resigned his post for personal reasons, Athletic Director Jesse Meriweather revealed Friday.

"I just received his letter of resignation today," Meriweather said, "and will be talking with Assistant Superintendent Dr. Terrel LeCesne on posting it quickly as we need to get our football players in the work room pretty quick."

A sense of urgency was added to filling the vacancy since the Romulus Eagles will be entering the MEGA Conference this fall.

Belleville motorist killed in crash

A 24-year-old Belleville motorist was killed at 2:30 a.m. Friday, in a one-vehicle accident at Bunton and Bemis roads in Augusta Township, Washtenaw County.

State Police reveal the vehicle was traveling south on Bunton Road at a T-intersection, when the crash occurred. Police reports state that it appears the victim, Kevin Wayne Boggs, 24, of Belleville, did not see the stop sign and went through the intersection at a high rate of speed.

His vehicle hit a dirt embankment and went airborne and then struck a tree in front of a private residence.

Police said he was not wearing a seat belt and that excessive speed and alcohol may have been factors in the crash. Mr. Boggs reportedly died at the scene of head and neck injuries, police said.

Canton schedules special election

A special primary election to fill the vacant township clerk's post has been slated on March 7.

Former clerk Loren Bennett resigned his post to take the State Senator's post in January. Currently Connie Roessler is acting clerk.

The filing deadline is 4 p.m. Feb. 7. The final day to withdraw petitions is Feb. 10.

Dumb, dumber....dumbest

Burglar leaves calling card at home of break in

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Dumb. Dumber.

And the dumbest burglar who has ever crossed Inkster Detective Darryl Tubbs' path has to be a 31-year-old Dearborn Heights man.

"He's definitely not a Rhodes scholar," said Tubbs of a suspect who is waiting to be charged for a break-in in Inkster. "And this is probably the easiest case I have ever handled in the 25 years on the force."

The suspect bragged while drinking up his illegally-obtained funds that he would never be returned to jail.

However, that's where he is today, in the Inkster lockup awaiting arraignment on charges of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling with the intent to commit larceny.

Early Thursday morning, someone broke into a home on Hazelwood Street in the city of Inkster. Wrapping his jacket around his fist to muffle the sound of breaking glass on the basement window, the would-be thief punched out the glass and entered the dwelling. The homeowner, 65, was asleep at the time of the break-in.

The thief slipped through the window and into the basement where he decided also to take off his gym shoes. He then left his jacket and the shoes in the basement, and proceeded to search for valuables.

The thief apparently found what he was looking for, but was surprised by the homeowner, who unsuccessfully attempted to stop the thief. The intruder quickly grabbed an envelope containing some bills and dashed out of the house, the homeowner following in close pursuit.

However, the victim decided he was no match for the thief, and gave up the chase. He returned home and called police.

In the meantime, the thief, sans shoes and jacket, apparently decided to calm his nerves at the nearest bar. When the suspect entered the bar he immediately drew the attention of the employees because he was coatless, shoeless and had a wad of money. They called police.

Police dispatched two units - one to investigate the break in; the other, a suspicious man.

When investigating officers searched the break-in scene, they not only discovered the gym shoes and the jacket, but inside the jacket was a wallet and an identification card.

The officers had smiles all over their faces.

Molly, a 30-pound, pot-bellied pig doesn't shed or smell either, according to her owner.

Lula admits to wanting a pig ever since watching the antics of Arnold the pig in the days of the television sitcom, Green Acres.

"Actually, I thought it would be an interesting pet for my children," she said. "I'm from North Carolina, a farm girl, and this pig brings me closer to home."

Molly, who she acquired on Halloween, has turned out to be an interesting pet.

"If she thinks there might be something under something, she'll move it," Mary Lula said.

If Molly crawls on the couch, she will get under the cushions, but otherwise she doesn't chew things like a dog. She's very smart, and not destructive, said her owner.

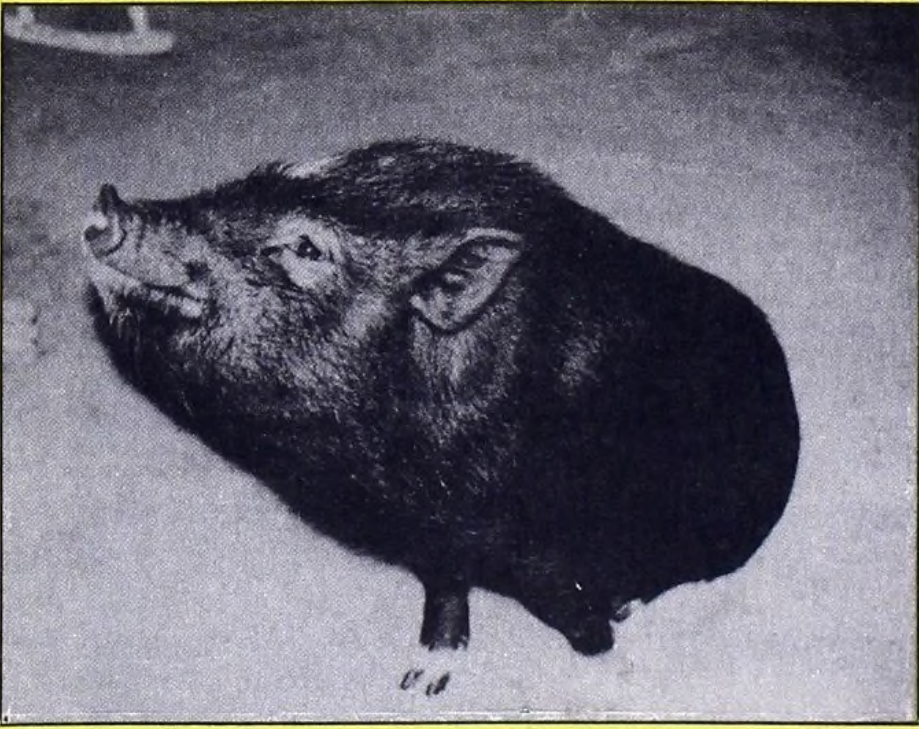

Molly rolls a ball around the house, but basically spends her time walking around the house searching for crumbs.

Maintaining the 30- to 35-pound ideal weight for the breed is a minor problem, though, as Molly is interested in eating all the time. Molly gets pig food, obtained at the mill, but family members sneak chips and cookies to her.

"If she knows you have it, she'll sit up, grunt, and snort and stuff," Lula explained. "She sits and tries to balance sitting up, but it's hard for her (due to her rotund shape) to do."

Lula describes her pedigree pig as a happy, healthy pig who runs and plays. Molly also has been known to accompany joggers outside, according to her owner.

"She is less hassle than a dog. We have a female Dalmatian that is very aggressive. We

Accused rapist, witness found

A Westland man accused of raping his neighbor at knife point and robbing her of $80 cash while her young child was sleeping inside the victim's trailer home, was captured by police in Commerce City, Colo., Monday night, Westland police Sgt. Terry Donohue said.

Westland police are awaiting the extradition of Anthony Guy Walker, 37, to Michigan to face arraignment on charges contained in a two-count felony warrant, Donohue said. Police have a warrant for Walker's arrest on three felony charges of armed robbery and two counts of criminal sexual conduct in the first-degree. He faces a maximum of life in prison if convicted of the charges.

According to Donohue, Walker was scheduled for an extradition hearing Thursday and is expected to return to Michigan in a minimum of two weeks. However, if Walker fights the extradition, his return to Westland could take even longer.

Walker is also wanted by local police since he is the key witness in the 1994 murder of his other neighbor 34-year-old Jane Marie Fray.

Wayne resident Ricky Alan Amolsch, 38, is awaiting trial on first-degree murder charges for allegedly brutally murdering the woman by beating, stabbing and strangling her to death in August.

Walker was arrested after Colorado police surrounded his cousin's home where he was staying between 5 and 6 p.m., Donohue said. Police ordered Walker out of the house and he voluntarily surrendered.

"We followed up any leads with relatives and friends," Donohue said, adding that Westland police notified Colorado officers that Walker had a cousin in the area.

The alleged rape occurred during the early morning hours Dec. 20 in Westland Meadows Trailer Park, according to Westland police Sgt. Terry Donohue. According to police, Walker allegedly called the victim and asked if he

Masked gunmen robs waitress, $5,000

By TOM MOORADIAN

Two masked gunmen held up an employee of a popular Inkster lounge and escaped with approximately $5,000 in cash after shoving their victim inside the trunk of her car.

Beth Tackett, an employee of Bogart's Lounge, told Inkster police that she was returning to the bar from a nearby business Wednesday night to deliver bills and coins when she was suddenly approached in the parking lot by two men wearing ski masks.

Tackett said she was getting out of the vehicle when one of the gunman placed a gun to her head and demanded that she hand over the money.

At first the victim hesitated, but the gunman threatened to kill her. Tackett said she went to the trunk of her car and opened it. She said that she took out a bag that contained bills and coins, approximately $5,000, and handed the bag over to the robbers who then ordered her to get into the trunk.

She did. And the robbers slammed it shut.

Shortly afterwards, when she believed that the gunmen had left the parking lot, she began shouting for help. A patron leaving the bar, which is located in the 30000 block of Michigan Avenue, just east of Henry Ruff, heard her pleas for help and opened the trunk.

Inkster Detective John McGruder said that the victim was not able to get a good look at the culprits and did not know if they had a getaway vehicle. He admits that he has little to go on, and is seeking citizens' help to solve the robbery.

"Obviously, because these guys wore masks, we also don't have a good description of the robbers," McGruder said. "I have not been able to get a hold of the victim since she made the initial report."

Anyone with information is urged to contact McGruder at the Inkster Detective Bureau by dialing 563-9856.

Golf War defused

Inkster receives front nine, Westland will see back nine in 'green' project

Inkster will get the front nine and the city of Westland the back nine of a proposed 18-hole golf course that Wayne County is planning to construct between the two cities on county-owned land.

That is the message Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, who attended an Inkster council study session Wednesday night, had for Inkster Mayor Edward Bivens and members of city council.

The clubhouse and the pro shop of the proposed golf course also will be located in the city of Inkster, county officials told the city.

However, McNamara stressed, plans for the golf course may be changed considerably before a final layout will surface. The information the county CEO provided the local lawmakers and residents may have helped defuse a volatile crowd of Inkster residents and officials who earlier have expressed indignation over an earlier county plan to build the course in Westland.

During the past 30 years, former county administrations have introduced plans to build golf courses in Inkster, but the plans never got off the drawing boards.

James White, a Westland resident and retired city employee who is an avid golfer, remained skeptical about the latest plan.

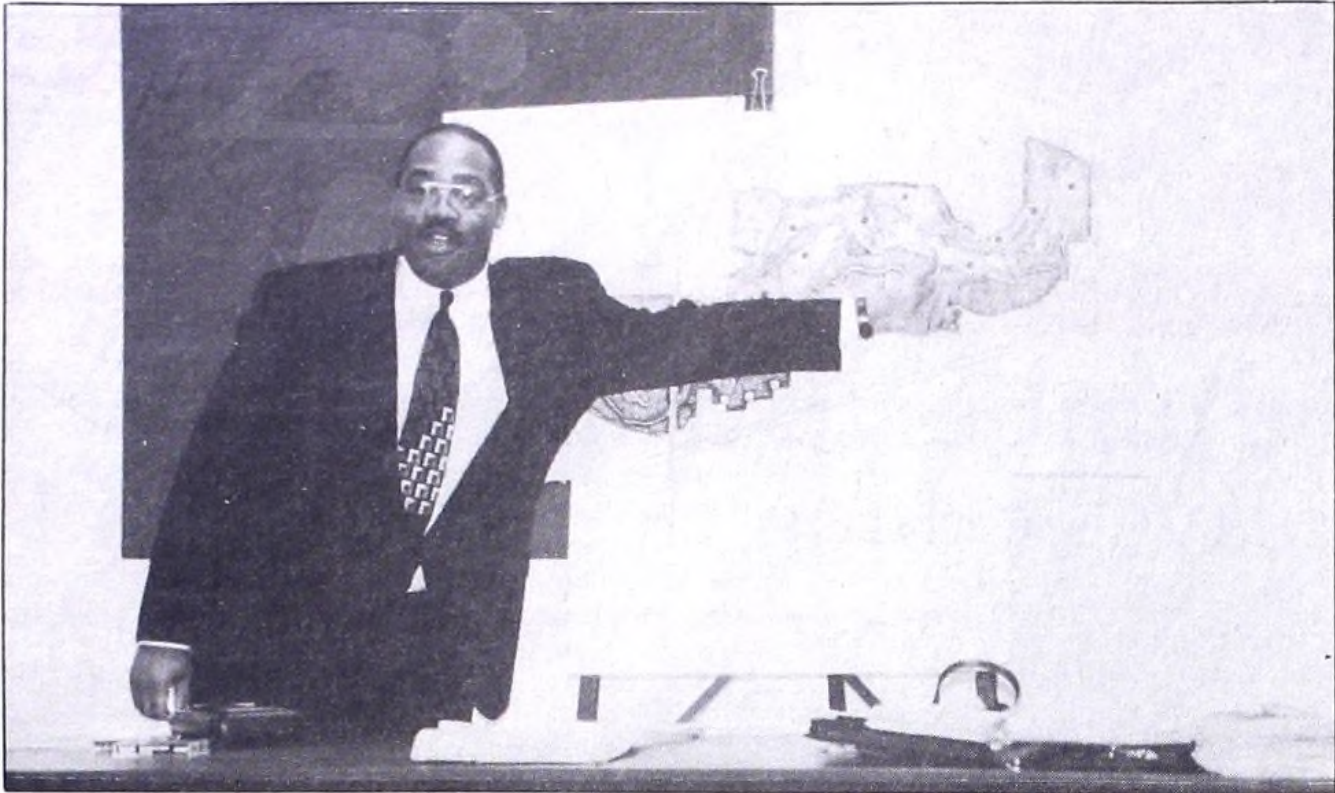

"I will believe it when I see it," McNamara informed the gathering that, he preferred to see the golf course built in Inkster, "but Inkster doesn't have enough land."

The county is proposing to construct the golf course on county-owned land, and the layout of the course as outlined by Hurley J. Coleman Jr., Wayne County Division of Parks and architect Donald Tilton, of Johnson & Johnson & Roy - an Ann Arbor firm, would incorporate parcels of land that housed the old Eloise Hospital, at Merriman Road and Michigan on the west, and stretching as far east to Inkster Road. Within the layout meanders the Rouge River.

The plans would necessitate the construction of two tunnels under major traffic arteries - Henry Ruff and Middlebelt roads.

Monies generated from the golf course would go to the county.

Coleman said that the proposed layout is a "fourth generation design." Noting that the previous attempts to build were met by opposition from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources because "I must also say that I am extremely disappointed that all 18-holes will not be located in Inkster."

the course would interrupt wetlands and destroy wildlife.

Coleman also revealed that land at Michigan Avenue and Henry Ruff had been the site of a landfill and that the property, presently privately-owned, would not be incorporated in the design.

McNamara interjected that the county didn't want to purchase the property "because once you opened it up, you don't know what you will find and what it would cost to clean it up."

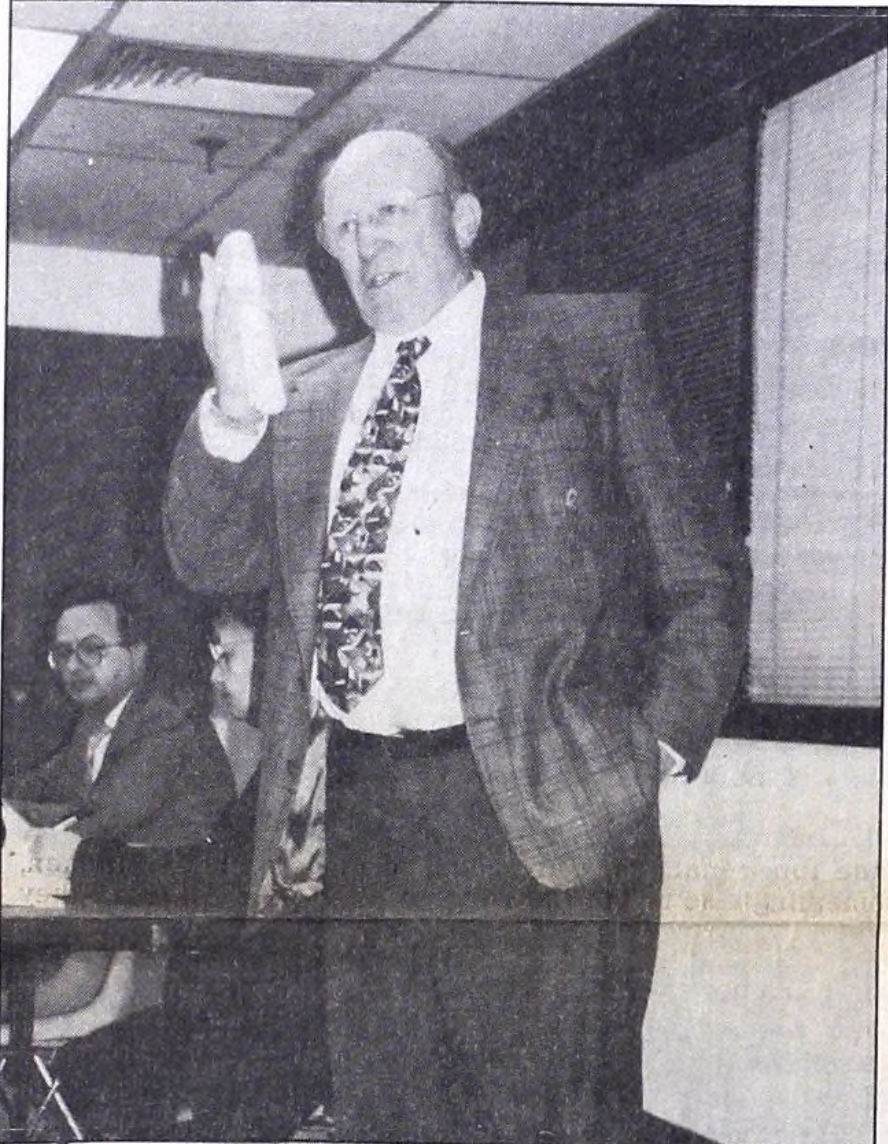

"That (land) is a Pandora's Box," McNamara added.

Tilton told the gathering that the present design calls for a par 72, 7,000-yard course that "potentially can be one of the best courses in Michigan, a course that could host the Michigan Amateur with no problems."

"As designers, we are very excited about this project," Tilton added.

Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard, whose district includes the cities of Westland and Inkster, said she remains a staunch supporter for a golf course for the city of Inkster.

Pointing out that the golf course is part an Inkster renaissance, that has brought a new shopping center and post office to the city, Beard added that "for too long Inkster has been overlooked."

"But I must also say that I am extremely disappointed that all 18-holes will not be located in Inkster. My fondest desire is that we will have a golf course and that the name be the Inkster Valley Golf Course. And the name means a lot to all of us."

Hurley offered a "bottom line" purpose for the meeting.

"We are here to assure all of you that we want to build this golf course."

put them out together to run. It's impossible to catch a pig," Lula said. "Pigs don't have a lot of self-defense qualities but they are very quick."

Now they keep the dogs in the basement, separated from the pig which presents an additional advantage because the dogs shed and are not as clean as Molly.

Molly came equipped with all her shots, medical care, and already neutered, for $50, but a piglet can cost up to $200, according to Lula.

She has become acclimated to household rules and training.

"She goes out the front door and knocks on the back when she's ready to come in," she said.

Lula describes a disadvantage of pig ownership, "The only thing about her is she grumbles. She seems like she is mumbling under her breath,

Century-old home renovated by family

By GRETCHEN MADICK
MCN Special Writer

As the new year signals a time of fresh beginnings and a renewal of commitments, the Landstrom family of Belleville is experiencing their first year as homeowners, beginning a huge renovation project of a 100-year-old house.

The uniqueness of the situation is intensified as the house they purchased on Haggerty Road celebrated its 100th birthday on Jan. 1.

Celebrating a birth for the house is not a new occasion, though, as a welcoming ceremony was performed Jan. 1, 1895 when a violin player stood in the parlor to perform for the occasion. This incident is documented in the book, Water Under the Bridge, by local historians Cathy Horste and Diane Wilson.

The Landstrom family of five was about to purchase a different home when they saw the century-old house in Belleville.

"I told Ken I didn't care for the Westland home. Every since I've known him he wanted a farm house. This house was vacant. Two-year-old Sean was running around the living room saying, 'mine, mine, mine.' We kept coming back," Debbie said.

The Landstroms have three children 10-year-old Kenny II, Sean and Erin who will be one year old on Valentine's Day.

The house is in original condition, according too Ken Landstrom, with the exception of a bathroom which was added in 1936 by cutting the parlor in half.

The Landstroms intend to restore the house to its original condition, but confess to having to make some minor modifications.

The house had settled five and one-half inches into the ground on the brick foundation which was laid over sand. The Landstroms leveled it with jacks and timbers and built a new foundation.

"Doors that never opened, opened and ones that did, never did anymore," Landstrom said.

He worked on the doors and now all are in good repair. Windows made out of purple hammer light glass are original to the house and would cost $300 to $400 to replace.

In addition to redoing the roof, two non-functional chimneys that had been capped below the roof line were removed. Twenty tons of brick made up those chimneys. It filled the milk house. Debbie Landstrom said, "I've never seen so much brick in my life."

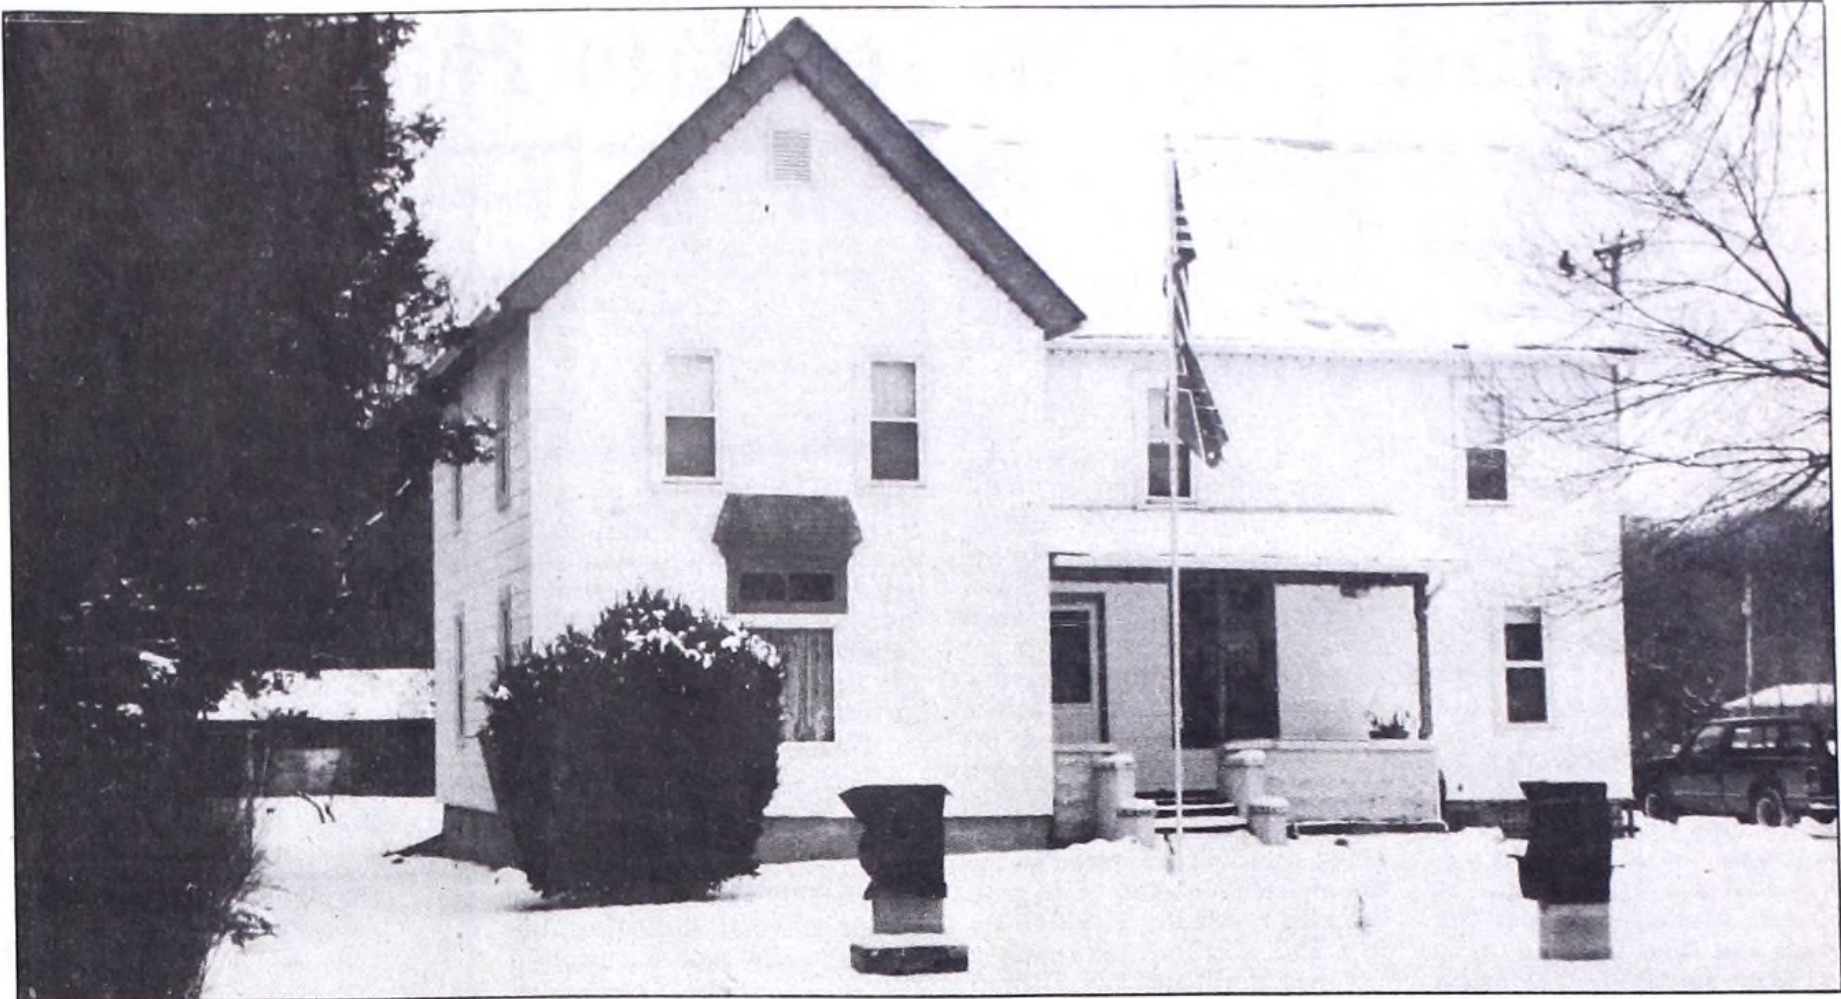

The Landstroms are constructing pillars in the front yard for an eventual fence with the brick. Two pillars are complete and seven more are going in along the property line.

"They don't make the clay brick anymore. We could make a fortune selling them," Landstrom said.

A house across the street has been constructed out of recycled wood from the barn wood of Landstrom's house.

A dining room window facing the back of the house has an active chimney behind it. The chimney is used for hot water and the furnace, Landstrom said. The family intends to take it down and restore a view of the backyard.

Five layers of wallpaper have been removed in the parlor so far and four remain to be steamed off. The parlor was an important room in the house. Courtships, weddings and funerals were conducted there. Two entrances on the front porch designate the usage of the parlor for funerals and two French doors are there for the purpose of closing off the parlor from the remaining rooms of the house. A relative of the Renton family planned to take those doors, but following the purchase of the home, a niece brought them back.

"That's all we cared about, we got them back," Landstrom said.

Ruth, Florence and Lloyd Riggs are children of the original owners, who were born in the parlor, along with Irvin who is deceased. Florence and her husband continued to live there until the Landstroms purchased the home. The sisters now live in Chelsea but come back to visit frequently.

"The ladies are happy and have come back a couple of times. They don't call, just show up," Debbie said, which was fine with her since she still thinks of them as partial house owners.

The milk house, built without a foundation, was used to store milk until the big truck (or horse) got there. Water pipes circulate around the milk house to keep it cool. The Landstrom family would like to find old milk cans and put it the way it was.

A jug and a wood alcohol container were found in the attic, along with a varnish can, labeled Berry Brothers Varnishers of Detroit. Two porcelain light switches were located, plastered into the walls.

Additional finds in the backyard included vine overgrowth, which cut gouges in trees and car doors, along with coal from a wood burning stove. An old bell, part of a crank telephone, was found inside the house.

The couple purchased an old cooker stove, which could be made functional. They are going to place it in the kitchen, "something else to put the house back to where it was," they explained.

At the top of the stairs is a parlor or gathering room, accompanying three bedrooms, two of which have been redecorated by the Landstroms. The one heat duct in the upstairs goes to the gathering room.

"Rooms were for guests in the summer. No one came in winter time," Landstrom explained.

"A lot of this last year was cleanup," Landstrom said.

Original woodwork moldings are being cleaned with a broom and bleach, which retains the original stain.

Unique construction of the home includes balloon framing, which means the studs go up and down. A solid oak stud in the basement goes all the way to the attic. The floor joists are all two-by-10s.

Insulating and coming up with some counter space and closets are top priorities in the months ahead, along with the addition of a garage and the use of city water. The well-water has been tested and, although it is safe, but the family intends to have both sources available. The iron content has a tendency to stain clothes.

An application has been filled out to receive a certificate from the State of Michigan commemorating the age of the home. Several black and white three-by-five pictures from different angles are part of the approval process.

Van Buren Supervisor David Jakokes gave permission for the family to apply for a plaque to be placed in the front of the house, but it's not an immediate request, as the plaques cost $1,200. They are hoping to receive some contributions toward the cost of the plaque from historic-minded area residents or from grants.

Historical significance in the new year holds a lot of work for the Landstrom family, but it will definitely be a labor of love.

The 100-year-old farmhouse (top photo) is the new home of Ken and Debbie Landstrom (right) shown here with Erin, 1. The original milk house (left) and several antique items (below left) are treasures to the Landstroms. Samples of the oak woodwork are below. MCN photo by Ken Garner

Residence is rich with local history

By GRETCHEN MADICK
MCN Special Writer

A wealth of history is present in a century-old home in Van Buren Township.

The Landstrom home at 17140 Haggerty Road was originally built previous to the marriage of Andrew Renton and Mary Ellen Daugherty. The newlyweds moved into their home on New Year's Day, 1895. At the housewarming party a violinist stood between the parlor and the living room and serenaded the guests.

Of the three children born at the house, two sisters, Florence and Ruth, remained at the residence with Ruth's husband, Lloyd Riggs. It was vacated previous to the Landstrom purchase.

Andrew Renton farmed and raised cows on the 60-acre property. He was known to have sold a team of colts to obtain money for furnishing the living room.

Renton installed the running water system, powered by a gasoline engine, which cooled the milk in the milk house and pumped water to the upstairs of the home.

Renton farmed with a one-furrow plow. Mary Ellen did the housework, and the girls were responsible for keeping the wood box filled. The family took their eggs to a general store in New Boston on Saturday via horse and buggy.

The children, Irvine, Florence and Ruth Renton, attended the Otisville school and both Ruth and Florence became teachers. Florence taught first grade in Adrian and then in Detroit where she remained for 37 years. Ruth taught two years in Romulus and then taught 42 years in Van Buren Schools.

The purchase of the Renton house has represented a trip back in history for the Landstroms, as they research the history of their new home and the family who lived there, and learn of the common practices of that time period.

Further information regarding the homes of the area can be found in the book, Water Under the Bridge, co-authored by Cathie Hortse and Diane F. Wilson.

Van Buren is site of many treasures

Van Buren Township, named for the 8th president of the United States, was never visited by him.

However, historians say that the passed through the area on a train trip from Detroit to Ann Arbor in 1842 and the area was pointed out to him. Reportedly, he was pleased with what he saw from the train window, but, because there was no suitable hotel or restaurant there, no effort was made to invite the president to stop for a visit. Michigan, which became a state on Jan. 26, 1837, was first explored by the French. The last native Americans who resided in the township was said to be Katie Quoque and her daughter, Mary McKee, according to historians, Cathy Horste and Diane Wilson. The women, who lived on the banks of the Huron River, were removed to a reservation in Kansas in 1847.

Among early settlers, whose names still are preserved in the names of streets and roads in the township were the Robsons, Soops, Tylers, Vinings, Robbes, Geddes, Carpenter, Clark, Elwell, Riggs, Savage and Quirk.

Many items of the past century are preserved in the Belleville Area Museum, located in the Quirk School. Hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Westland woman reveals fears of alleged stalker

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
MCN Staff Writer

A Westland woman, who told police she has been stalked for the past two years by an unidentified woman claiming their 8-year-old daughters were switched at birth, said an unidentified armed man threatened to rape and kill her Sunday afternoon.

Lynette Allgood, 32, claims the man who she saw following her in a red pickup truck, approached her while she was in her car at a stop sign at Doxtator and North Gulley in Dearborn.

Allgood had just completed her banking and was looking at her receipt when a man wearing a ski mask allegedly approached the driver's side of her car, attempted to open the doors and then held a gun to her head and said, "Shame on you for going to the police. Now you leave me no choice. I have to rape and kill you," according to Allgood.

With her driver's side window partially down, the woman's 7-month-old dog jumped in her lap and began barking at the offender blocking her from the gun, Allgood said.

"He said call off your dog ... and the traffic started moving on North Gulley. He walked backwards toward his truck," she said.

Allgood claims this same man, described as a 36-year-old 6-foot, 1-inch to 6-foot, 2-inch tall white male with brown hair worn in a pony tail, green eyes and a scar on his left cheek by his eye, also approached her at a grocery store last Sunday.

"He bashed me with a grocery cart and told me he'd kill me if I went to the police (about the alleged attempted abductions)," Allgood said.

"I'm absolutely petrified for my life," Allgood said.

According to hospital spokeswoman Nancy Dumas, 17 children were born on the same day as Jessica Allgood. Allgood said she remembers thinking the child she took home from the hospital did not resemble the one she gave birth to.

"I called my mother two days after I was home and told her I thought I had the wrong baby," Allgood said.

The alleged stalking and attempted abduction incidents came to light after Allgood filed a police report with Westland police regarding the attempted kidnapping of Jessica. According to reports, a few weeks ago, the alleged offender tried to take Jessica from the playground of Kettering Elementary School. The alleged incident occurred when the offender attempted to grab the child and the girl fled on foot and notified her teacher.

Since that time, the alleged stalker has been driving by the victim's Avondale Street home and following the victim and her two children in her vehicle, according to Allgood.

"The drive-bys started after the new year. My children are petrified," Allgood said. "She drives by and screams at the top of her lungs that she's going to kill me."

The first time she met up with the alleged offender was approximately 18 months ago when the subject approached her while she was picking up her 6-year-old son, Kevin, from Livonia Bentley Center, police said.

According to reports, the alleged offender grabbed her by the throat and said she wanted her daughter back. Allgood moved to Inkster shortly after the incident where she claims six further attempted abductions occurred in front of her home.

The woman and her children have moved a total of three times to get away from the alleged offender, but to no avail. On Jan. 3, Allgood received a phone call stating that the alleged stalker had seen her at Arbor Drugs earlier in the day and she wanted her daughter back or she would kill the Westland woman, according to police.

"This is really taking a toll on all of us. The kids won't leave my side," the divorced mother said.

An earlier incident involved the alleged offender calling Allgood and informing her that she had kidnapped her children and if the mother didn't do what she was told, the children would be "mutilated beyond recognition," according to Allgood.

The Westland woman has also received death threat phone calls from the alleged assailant and even calls from the other woman's 8-year-old daughter, whom the Allgood claims is physically and mentally abused.

"When the little one calls me, she calls me 'mom'. There's a lot of emotional abuse right there. It's heart-breaking to hear about the black eyes and how she's not in school because of the bruises," Allgood said, adding that the girl has told her the alleged offender "doesn't love me because I'm not hers."

Allgood said she has tried to get the girl to tell her where she lives, but because she allegedly cannot read it has been impossible.

This heart-breaking and frightening chain of events has lead the mother to seek the truth. Allgood had a blood test performed Friday to determine if the child she raised is her daughter.

The results will take weeks, and if the tests come back negative she plans to adopt the child she raised as her daughter and fight for custody of the other child if she is her biological mother.

Allgood admits that there is a resemblance between her daughter and the suspect and between herself and the suspect's daughter.

"She claims she has my little girl. I've seen her, she does look like me, but as far as I'm concerned (the child I raised) is mine," she said, adding that she thinks there's a good possibility the two girls were switched at birth.

"What I fear is I'll lose the one I raised. She's (the alleged offender) already been tested. Biologically, she is not the mother of the child she raised," Allgood added.

According to Allgood, her child was born at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn on Sept. 25, 1986. Whether or not she took her biological child home from the hospital that fall is yet to be determined. The woman has prepared her 8-year-old for the worst.

"I told my daughter about it. She said 'You're my mom, I don't care what the blood work says. She said, 'If the other little girl is your daughter we have to get her back,'" the Westland woman said. "

The mother has given a description of the alleged stalker to police but does not know the woman's name or where she lives. The offender is described as a 6-foot tall, 185 pound, 30-year-old white female with blonde short straight hair, blue eyes and wears eye glasses.

2 local stores cater to woodcrafters

Woodcraft Supply Corp., headquartered in Parkersburg, West Virginia, is pleased to announce the opening of the newest Woodcraft retail store in Sterling Heights, Michigan. The store is located in The Sterling Place Shopping Center at 37864 Van Dyke and 16 1/2 Mile Road. The store opening brings the total number of Woodcraft locations to 18 nationwide. With stores in major metropolitan areas from coast to coast, Woodcraft also has a store in Canton at 42102 Ford Road, which was recently relocated from Redford. Woodcraft has been operating in the Detroit area for six years.

Woodcraft stores carry over 4,500 woodworking products: hand and power tools for woodcarving, woodturning, timber framing, and cabinet and furniture making; wood finishing, scraping, sanding, sharpening and safety supplies; "how-to" books and video tapes; large stationary power tools and workbenches. Woodcraft also carries a wide variety of hardwoods and exotic woods for fine cabinetry, carving and woodturning.

Woodcraft provides woodworkers, who range in skill level from hobbyist to professional, with services such as tool sharpening and an educational program of "hot-to" classes and seminars. Woodcraft is staffed by woodworkers, and their technical advice is free.

Woodcraft Supply was founded in 1928 in Boston, Massachusetts, as a one room shop providing professional cabinetmakers and schools with new and rebuilt machinery and supplies. To satisfy customer needs, the company began marketing imported and domestic tools, many of which had been discontinued by manufacturers, but were desperately needed by America's crafts people. Woodcraft eventually became one of the nation's leading mail order suppliers of woodworking tools. Woodcraft, through its retail stores and mail order catalog, now serves a national and worldwide constituency of professionals, serious amateurs, hobbyists, and beginning woodworkers. While the demands of today's crafts people are continually changing, they are still based on the need for high quality products similar to the needs of over sixty years ago. Woodcraft was acquired by SBR, Inc. of Parkersburg, WV in 1987.

Woodcraft is the exclusive USA distributor of Swiss made carving tools in the world. Woodcraft is also the exclusive authorized local sales and service center for the shopsmith Mark V and accessory products. The Mark V is considered to be the world's premier multipurpose woodworking tool, performing the functions of five independent machines - table saw, drill press, disc sander, lathe, and horizontal boring machine.

Robber threatens store bombing

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
MCN Staff Writer

An attempted armed robbery occurred at Marian's Cleaners in Westland when a man allegedly threatened to use explosives if store owners did not give him their money, according to Westland police.

The alleged incident occurred around 2:15 p.m. Tuesday when one of the owner's, a 59-year-old woman, was approached by the alleged assailant. With one hand in his jacket pocket and a package in the other hand, the man entered the store, located at 29224 Warren Road, and approached the counter, police said.

Once at the counter, the alleged perpetrator took a bag

Council supports wetland mitigation

Ford Motor Company will soon be expanding its property ownership to Westland with the recent approval of a resolution endorsing a wetland mitigation plan by the Westland City Council.

Ford officials have been given the go ahead by city council to purchase 210 acres of Wayne County land and use that area to replace the wetlands they are utilizing in the expansion of facilities in Wayne.

According to the resolution adopted by city council, "... the City of Westland endorses the creation of up to 80 acres of wetlands on said property (which is located southeast of the intersection of Michigan Avenue and Merriman Road) by Ford Motor Company or its subsidiaries, successors or assignees."

"We'll buy the entire 210 acres and proceed with the wetlands, developing 1-1/2 acres per acre of wetland," said Jerry Brown, director of state and local governmental relations for Ford.

out of his pocket and placed it with the package on top of the counter while holding it and said, "Give me all your money. I don't want you to make any sudden moves. Don't alert anyone. Don't set off any alarms or I will set off the bombs," police reports said.

The woman responded by screaming, "We're being robbed."

Her 66-year-old husband came to the front of the store and the alleged assailant threw his arms into the air and said, "I'm just kidding. I'm just kidding," according to police reports.

He then walked out of the business southbound on Middlebelt towards Warren.

The alleged perpetrator is described as a white male in his late 30s, approximately 5-feet, 4-inches tall, 155 pounds, wearing a green hooded sweatshirt tied tight around his face, blue jeans and tan boots.

The incident is under investigation by Westland police.

Minister presents challenge to join army of believers Bible

By Rev. Mark Dahlberg
Two of the biggest misconceptions in our world today is that the Bible is nothing more than a book of rules, and that anyone who is a follower of Christ is just some weak, mindless individual. A puppet on a string in the biggest play of their life.
Yet, if you would take the time to look into the history of the church, you would find its pages stained with the blood of the dear saints who have gone before us. Dying in a heroic battle against evil, making it possible for you and I today to hold and read the precious book of books, God's Holy Word. If one would look into the Holy Bible, he would find that it is full of love, romance, war, peace, joy, sorrow, miracles, direction and so on. You couldn't help but get caught up in its reading.

Are we weak when we surrender our life to Christ? Are we wandering around aimlessly, having no goal for our life? I hardly think so!

Mark Dahlberg

Paul tells us in Ephesians 6:12, "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."
Paul then goes on to tell us to take on the whole armor of God that we might be able to stand. This doesn't sound like someone who is a weak individual having to put on the armor of God to battle the power of evil.
You see, to be a follower of Christ requires one thing - your life. You must be born again, Jesus said, if you ant to be in His army.

The thing that is so great about God is that He will take anyone who is willing to give Him the chance.
I often hear, "if I came to church the place would fall in on me." Yet, person after person has come in the church and it still stands.
You see, I had to come to the place of accepting God as my personal Savior, and I was nothing of any value. Many people have come in the door of churches across this beautiful land in which we live, and they have left a soldier of the cross. How about you? Are you a soldier yet? You certainly can be, even today Christ awaits your arrival.

I pray that as we are still in the beginning of 1995 that you would pray for God to lead you to a church that preaches the "true word of God." Don't just pick a church at random. And, don't be just a holiday attendee, but one who will attend faithfully. You see the weak stay home and sleep in, the solders get up and go.
Let yourself be used of God this year in your church and you will make a difference in your family, your church and your community. May God bless your effort.
Editor's note: The Rev. Mark Dahlberg is the pastor of Speeding Oak Tabernacle, 715 Helen St., Inkster.

School board adopts modified gun-free policy in district

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer
A modified gun-free school policy was adopted by the Romulus School District last Monday, putting the school policy in compliance with state and federal laws.
Several years ago, the local school district approved a tough new policy that permanently expelled any student found to have a weapon on his or her person on Romulus School District-related property.

Late last year, the Michigan Legislature approved and Gov. John Engler signed a new state-wide law that expels the same type students, but allows those up to the fifth grade to petition for re-instatement after 60 days (but they must fulfill 90 days of expulsion time) and those in grades six to 12 are allowed to seek reinstatement after 150 days (but must fulfill 180 days of expulsion time).

While some felt the change was a weakening of the local weapons policy, Assistant Superintendent of Schools Joel Carr felt upbeat about the change, stating "now we have both state and federal laws supporting our own student code of conduct."
According to the new provision, "a student shall be expelled if it is determined that the student brought a dangerous weapon to school, possessed a dangerous weapon at school or in a weapon-free school zone, committed arson in a school building or on school grounds, or raped someone in a school building or on school grounds."

The student code listed starter guns and BB guns among those weapons covered by the policy, as well as poisonous gas devices, bombs, grenades, daggers and stilettos, knives with blades longer than three inches or brass knuckles.

The policy describes "a weapon-free school zone" as school property (a playing field, property used for school purposes), and a vehicle used by a school to transport students to or from school property.
The policy also states a "building administrator (such as a principal) shall report any student violating this policy to the local police and shall notify the student's parents or legal guardian.

The building administrator also is instructed to refer any student expelled under this policy, within three days of expulsion, to the County Department of Social Services or the County Community Mental Health Agency.

Amann criticized on health insurance

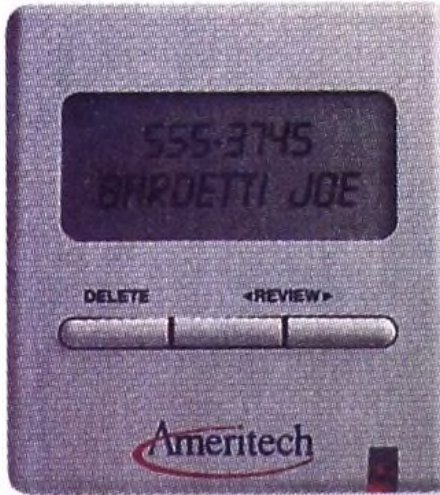

Adversely criticized for forcing Wayne County to give him a paid health insurance policy, former 11th District Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann said that the criticism is off target.
Area newspapers have accused Amann of wrangling life-time health insurance for himself, his wife, and children.
But press accounts have it wrong, according to the former commissioner and county employee.
"I only asked for an additional seven years. I'm 38-years-old, and had the insurance coming at 45 anyway," he said. "Also, just because I'm eligible for the benefit doesn't mean I'm taking it. I have three other job offers that would provide me with primary coverage."
Amann previously said that he is going to open a law office in Canton Township in mid-January.
However, he said that the focus of criticism should be the county's health care policy, not his actions to bring it in compliance with federal law.
The policy, modified by the commission in 1994, granted lifetime health insurance to high level employees and commissioners with eight years service at the specified level. The insurance would take effect when the employee turned 45.
Compared to benefits offered by neighboring counties, the benefit is generous. Wealthy Oakland County only offers benefits to employees with 25 years of service.
Amann said that the commission is responsible for the policy and can change it. Amann is responsible for challenging the policy's age requirement.
"The 45-year limit was not legal under the federal age discrimination act, which prohibits discrimination in terms and conditions of employment on the basis of age," he said. "I had a legal right to health benefits. My wife has a legal right."
He said that the age limit was irrational because other older commissioners, with less seniority than he had, are immediately eligible for the same benefits. On that basis, he convinced the commissioners, upon legal advice, to strike out the age requirement.
A public outcry followed, and Commissioner Susan Hubbard of Dearborn, is drafting a resolution to eliminate the benefit for elected and appointed officials. However, even if passed, the proposal would not effect current commissioners who have a vested interest in the benefit, acquired by past service.

Residents share their January birthdays with celebrities

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

The first of January marked the start of 1995, and the end of January will mark the beginning of 4693 - the Chinese lunar year of the pig.

The month was named for the ancient Roman god of two faces, Janus, who was believed to be able to look forward and backward at the same time. The Romans were first to celebrate the new year in January. In 1752, England adopted the Gregorian calendar and the first of January permanently became New Year's Day.

Onyx is the January stone and holly is the flower of the month.

Notable birthdays in January are patriots Betsy Ross and Paul Revere on Jan. 1, writer Isaac Asimov on Jan. 2 and actor Ray Milland on Jan. 3, the same day that Belleville resident Darryl Raymond Jr. was born.

Boxer Floyd Patterson was born on Jan. 4. Walter Mondale and former township supervisor R. Lynne Hamilton celebrate their birthdays on Jan. 5 and poet Carl Sandburg and actress Loretta Young share a Jan. 6 birthday.

Elvis Presley was born Jan. 8, former president Richard Nixon was born on Jan. 9 and writer Jack London was born on Jan. 12. Belleville resident Andrea Ferguson also was born on Jan. 12.

The man famous for his advice of "Go West, young man," Horatio Alger, was born on Jan. 13, the same day as 1994 Strawberry Festival court member Kimberly Shephard. Actress Faye Dunaway and humanitarian Albert Schweitzer were born on Jan. 14 and civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was born on Jan. 15.

January is also the birthday of actress/singer Ethel Merman, Jan. 16; Benjamin Franklin, Jan. 17; actor Cary Grant and Belleville resident Ann Szlinis, Jan. 18; writer Edgar Allan Poe, Jan. 19; comedian George Burns, Jan. 20; actress Jeanne Moreau, former township clerk Joann Tadrick, and former president Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jan. 30. Van Buren Township resident Muriel Harris was born Jan. 31.

Speaker featured at King event

By GRETCHEN MADICK
MCN Staff Writer

"Living the Dream: Diversity Without Adversity in a Changing World," will be the topic of a 1:40 p.m. Jan. 16 program at Belleville High School in honor of Martin Luther King.

Dr. Kathleen Beauvais, a professor of psychology and teacher education at both Eastern Michigan University and University of Michigan, is the guest speaker.

"One of our most important goals is to provide equal educational opportunity to all students. We want to emphasize to our community how much we appreciate their help and support as we work to prepare students for successful life in the 21st century. I hope many parents and community members will hear Dr. Beauvais and be moved by her words," said Superintendent of Schools James Richendollar.
